HILLSBORO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Thirty- as "young adults" by authorities at the Broward that it wasn't intended for a long journey three Maitian refugees drowned early yesterday after their leaky, 25-foot wooden sailboat broke up in rough surf less than a half-mile from shore, the U.S. Coast Guard said. The 34 others aboard the boat survived.

It was the worst such accident since heavy influxes of Caribbean refugees began arriving by boat more than three years ago.

Petty Officer Daryl Gale said all the bodies washed ashore, and a search by helicopters and boats was suspended shortly before noon.

"You come so close. Half of them made it, half of them didn't. It's so sad," said Dan Hynes, a police sergeant in this town 35 miles north of

By midmorning, the dead - their near-naked bodies twisted into odd, broken-doll positions by the fierce waves that dumped them ashore littered the beach along with ship debris, including the broken mast. The partially submerged ship's frame washed to within 50 feet of shore.

"It looked like a combat zone. There were bodies everywhere," Patrolman Joe Dente said. The dead included 19 men and 14 women, three of whom were pregnant. All were described County morgue.

Dr. Ronald K. Wright, the Broward County medical examiner, said late Monday that the death toll was 35 as far as he was concerned because two of the fetuses were near term and could have survived outside the womb.

Wright also said autopsies indicated the victims had been loaded into their small boat from a mother ship about an hour before they died because they had eaten a variety of refrigerated, ship-type meals. They had just eaten the type of meals that come from a really good refrigerator," Wright said in a telephone interview from his Fort Lauderdale office. "Some people had had rice and chicken. Others potatoes and pork. Some vegetables. Salad. They were well fed." Authorities in the past have expressed suspicion that some wooden sailboats filled with refugees were dropped off by freighters not far from

Police Chief Ralph Dunn noted that refugee boats are usually waterproofed on the inside with pitch, but said the boat frame recovered Monday was coated only with mud, possibly indicating

Thirty Haitians, aided by strong tides, swam safely to shore, Gale said. The survivors seemed in good shape, police said. They were treated for exposure and saltwater inhalation by police and paramedics, then put on a bus for a refugee detention center southwest The survivors said they left Haiti on Aug. 26, spent a month in the Bahamas, then departed five to seven days ago. They contended that no money or smuggling was involved in the voyage, police Hynes said morgue officials reported that some of the bodies had facial cuts, but added, You can rule out foul play for now.' Eartha Haynes of the Broward Medical Examiner's office said preliminary examinations indicated that all 33 Haitians died from drowning. The overcrowded boat, buffeted by 5-foot waves, began leaking late Sunday, survivors said. A large swell roared over the boat early yesterday morning and swamped it, survivors told po-

Christopher To Undergo Mental Test

By Greg Faherty COURIER EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER

Joseph G. Christopher, the white Army private accused of the .22- caliber killings of three Erie County blacks, will undergo psychlatric examination to determine if he had the mental capacity to waive a jury last

State Supreme Court Justice William J. Flynn said yesterday he will sign an order directing the Erie County Forensic Mental Health Service to appoint two psychiatrists to conduct the examination.

There was no immediate indication of whether the psychiatric examination of Christopher, 26, will delay start of his trial, now set to begin on Monday.

'If this takes longer than a week, trial will be put off," defense attorney Mark J. Mahoney told reporters after leaving Justice Flynn's chambers, where he discussed with the judge the form the order will take.

Christopher, facing trial on three counts of second-degree murder, is accused of shooting two black men and a black teen-ager during a 26hour span from Sept. 22 to 24, 1980.

The defendant stunned a packed courtroom last Tuesday when he waived his constitutional right of trial by jury, contrary to the advice of his defense lawyers. During arguments that day and

Poland Deploys Military Units

WARSAW, Poland - Hundreds of small military units were deployed in the countryside yesterday under a new program to use the army to bolster local authority and attempt to sort out food- and fuel-supply problems.

One of the main functions of the new military teams, the state-controlled media has emphasized, will be to ensure that livestock and vegetables raised by private farmers reach state purchasing outlets.

The units took to the field with no visible reaction or incidents reported, only two days before a scheduled one-hour national strike called by the Solidarity union.

The political authorities kept up a public campaign against the strike yesterday, asserting that it was "a threat to the security of the coun-

They said the strike, which the union called Friday to protest food shortages and government "harassment" of union activists, "must be met with actions commensurate with the threat.'

Last night's warning, although vague, marked the first time since the end of March that the Communist leaders have hinted at the use of force to head off a threatened protest. Then, Solidarity called off an open-ended national strike after a last-minute agreement was reached with the government over an incident of police houtality in the city of Bydgoszcz.

The current protest, however, seems much more diffuse - almed at bringing under control some of the wildcat protests affecting more

Buffalo, Other Cities

By Ann Podd COURIER-EXPRESS FINANCIAL EDITOR

For the last 150 years, the cities of the Great Lakes have grown up as cool neighbors. They competed for the heavy industries, such as steel and automotive plants, that use the waters of the lakes. They fought in Washington, D.C., over special interests. And each of their ports worked against the port next door.

Now, for the first time, five major cities on the Great Lakes - Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and Milwaukee - are teaming up to create what they hope will be a powerful, privately funded political action organization. Unlike previous attempts by Buffalo to join with other cities, this new organization would be run by business persons instead of politicians, according to preliminary out-

'Past efforts of Great Lakes political leaders to create effective new regional political action entities have failed due to partisanship and petty bickering," according to one of the outlines.

"Simply put, the political leadership must get their own house in order and show that they are capable of regional maturity and discipline. An end to interstate industrial and business 'raiding parties' by the several governors would be a start,' the outline said.

The Great Lakes is probably the last area not to have some sort of coalition, according to its organizers. New England, the Sunbelt and the Rocky Mountain states have organized leaders in the public and private sectors to gain political lev-

Two Suspects Denied Bail In Murder of Store Cashier

Story by Courier-Express staff reporters Marshall Brown, Carolyn Raeke and Richard Roth.

The two men charged in the pistol-slaying Sunday of a supermarket cashier were jailed without bail yesterday on charges of second-degree murder and robbery.

Joseph M. Cordova, 19, of Plymouth Avenue, and Michael Fal-200e, 20, of Massachusetts Avenue. were arraigned before City Court Judge Joseph S. Forma, who scheduled them for a preliminary hearing tomorrow.

The two men allegedly killed Esther Normile, 24, of Perkins Place, during the robbery of the Bells Supermarket at 765 Elmwood Ave. about 10:45 a.m. Sunday. ### Reagan's Security 'Views'

Security was such a major preoccupation of the Mexican organizers and the American delegation of the Cancun summit meeting that President Reagan's spectacular view of the ocean from his hotel room was completely hidden by the translucent white cloth the Secret Service used to hide him.

There was only one security "incident" during the summit and it involved Ferdinand Marcos, president of the Philippines. He just happened to have a small handgun in his briefcase as he walked into the opening session of the conference. Mexican security guards took the gun from him for "safekeeping" and returned it to Marcos after the meeting.

House Budget Committee member Leon Panetta of California was more blunt: "By sitting back and watching the Republicans squirm, we have made more headway in the last two months than we have all session."

Royal Duo to Tour Wales

LONDON (AP) - Authorities imposed tight security around Prince Charles and Princess Diana when they left London last night on the royal train for their first public engagement since their July 29 wedding in St. Paul's Cathedral — a tour of the principality from which they get their titles

Amid fears of attack by Welsh nationalists or Irish extremists who have links among hardline nationalists. the Prince and Princess of Wales begin the three-day tour when they arrive at Shotton station this morning.

Those fears were heightened yesterday when police experts defused an incendiary bomb found in a British army recruiting office in the south Wales town of Ponty-

They were tipped by an anonymous call to a Samaritans charity office, police said. The recruiting office is, a few hundred yards from the route Charles and Diana will take on Thursday when they visit the town.

The royal tour follows firebomb attacks on several English-owned holiday homes in Wales last week, forwhich police suspect Welsh nationalist radicals who seek independence for Wales despite rejection of a partial self-rule referendum in March 1979.

There also is fear of an Irish Republican Army attack following a resumption of the IRA's bombing campaign on the British mainland this month. Charles, 32-year-old heir to the British throne, was given the title Prince of Wales by his mother. Queen Elizabeth II, in 1958 and today revisits Caernaryon Castle, the site of his formal investiture in 1969. His 20-year-old bride, the former Lady Diana Spencer, by the end of the 400-mile tour, "will have seen more in three days of this wild and varied land than many of the people who live in it," said the Times of London's Cardiff correspondent.

The newlyweds honeymooned in the Mediterranean and then spent 21/2 months at the royal retreat in Balmoral, Scotland.

On the trip to Wales they will spend their nights on the royal train rather than at the homes of royal patrons, the normal practice. A Buckingham Palace spokesman declined to confirm press reports that this was for security reasons.

The London Daily Express said troops of the British army's crack Special Air Service regiment, counterterrorist specialists, would form an armed guard for the couple throughout the tour.

"The train is a convenient place for them to go back to each night and as you know, we never discuss security," the palace spokesman told the Associated

The Daily Mirror said it would be the largest security operation in Wales since the prince's investiture 12 years ago. No cars will be allowed to park near places the couple will visit and detectives have combed stores and offices overlooking the route.

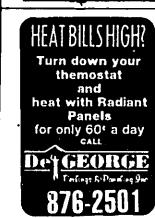

Charles learned Welsh before his investiture and is chancellor of the University of Wales. English princes have reigned in Wales since 1282 when King Edward I decided to crush Welsh independence. His son, later Edward II, was the first Englishman to take the title Prince of Wales. Charles is the 21st.

Prison Bond Foes Present Options

ALBANY (AP) - A group opposed to the state's $500-million prison bond issue claimed yesterday that state officials have ignored other less costly and more efficient ways to relieve prison overcrowd-

"The political leadership is responding to fear," the Rev. James Murphy of Schenectady charged. The clergyman is a regional coordinator for the New York-based Voters Against the Prison Bond.

If approved by voters Nov. 3, the bond issue would let the state spend $350 million to add about 4,000 new prison cells, and $125 million for local jail improvement and $25 million for improved juvenile detention facilities and mental health treatment for prisoners.

The Rev. Murphy and the group's director, Robert Gangi, called a news conference to publicize a report for state legislators on alternatives to spending money to build new prison cells to accommodate an increased inmate population.

Common Council from passing a bill to July. Fahey Scores Charter Unit's Plans

has fired an opening-round salvo into the Charter revision Commission's request that candidates respond to the three issues it will put before the voters Nov. 3.

Those three propositions call for a reduction in the size of the Council from 15 to 12 members, the formation of a citizens advisory commission to assist the Council in reapportionment and the elimination of the city treasurer's office.

The commission proposed reducing the size of the Council to reflect the city's population decrease and to cut costs.

The cost-cutting argument, he said, "attacks a total budget of over $310 million at its smallest part. If size.

Councilman-at-large Eugene Fahey the commission was serious about cost reduction in city government, the place to look is not the Council, which comprises less than onethree-hundredths of the budget, or .3 percent. Rather, the commission would obviously look within those major areas of the administration where costs may be excessive or needs may be exaggerated.

"To change the structure now because of the wishes of the temporary occupant of the second floor of City hall is to do a disservice to all of the people of Buffalo for the personal gain of one political faction," Fahey said in an oblique reference to Mayor James D. Griffin's often-stated desire to see the Council reduced in

Love Canal Residents To Undergo Gene Tests

By Bob Dearing COURIER EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER

Federal health officials are set to begin a "pioneering" health study on Love Canal residents to see if exposure to chemicals can be linked to genetic damage.

A small number of residents and former residents will begin to be contacted next week as the medical preparation for the testing begins. The $400,000 study, approved last month by the Department of Health and Human Services, will be conducted by the Atlanta-based federal Center for Disease Control. A chromosome test ordered by the Environmental Protection Agency and conducted by the private consulting firm of Biogenics Corp. of Texas in 1980 led to the declaration of a second health emergency in the neighborhood and an eventual federal-state evacuation program for an additional 750 families.

The test also raised a controversy inside and outside the medical community and was criticized for not including a control group where results could be compared to unex-

posed populations. The study found chromosome irregularities in 11 of the 36 persons who were studied in the group.

Daniel Van der Meer, associate director of the CDC's Environmental Health division, said the new study will attempt to retest the original 36 persons who participated in 1980 as well as 36 individuals who live outside the canal area.

The tests also will examine the chromosomes of residents who lived in the homes which state monitoring figures show had the highest levels of contamination. Those residents all lived in the "Ring 1" and "Ring 2" areas of 97th and 99th streets. and Van der Meer said he could not say yet exactly how many will be asked to participate.

Officials will arrive next week to begin tracking down the residents, many of whom no longer live in the canal area. Van der Meer sald most of the sampling can be done in the individual's homes.

Blood samples will be drawn from the subjects and taken to the Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island and the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee where the chromosomes on the white blood cells will be examined for breakage or other damage.

Genetic damage has been linked to cancer and birth defects, but the effectiveness of chromosome testing as a means of predicting potential health risks to current and future generations is still debated.

Dr. Charles Stutzman, a CDC physician, and John Figler, a public health administrator, will arrive in Niagara Falls next week to begin preliminary work. Actual sampling may start as soon as Nov. 30. Van der Meer said he hopes the results of the tests can be released within a

The new chromosome tests are what is left of an original federal pledge, first made by the Carter administration, to conduct extensive health studies on all current and former residents of the canal area.

Funding cutbacks and controversy over the legitimacy of any conclusions reached in such a wideranging study led to the drastically scaled-down version now about to

City Law Regulating Arcades Challenged

By Jim Szymanski COURIER-EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER

State Supreme Court Justice Theodore S. Kasler ordered city lawyers yesterday to appear in court on Friday to defend the city's law regulating coin-operated amusement games and arcade rooms.

Attorney Paul J. Cambria obtained the order on behalf of Robert J. Wnek, a vending machine dis tributor who has formed the Western New York Coin Machine Operators Association with about 25 other vending machine operators to challenge the law

After Justice Kasler issued the order, Cambria said he would ask the court on Friday to issue a preliminary injunction barring the city from enforcing the law until the court case is decided.

A decision could have a sweeping effect throughout the city where License Director Frank J. Hahn estimates that at least 200 stores, taverns and supermarkets are operating an estimated 800 coin-operated machines affected by the law.

After approval by the Common Council, Mayor James D. Griffin signed the bill into law on Sept. 23. The law established a $75 annual licensing fee for each coin-operated amusement game, including the popular video games, and barred their use between 11 p.m. and 10 a.m.

In an effort to curb truancy and loitering by minors, the law also made it illegal for teen-agers under 16 to be in any establishment with at least four such coin-operated machines during school hours. The law defined an arcade as any place containing at least four such machines.

In earlier court cases, Wnek's lawyers got the city to license coinoperated bowling games and last December, they persuaded a court to legalize coin-operated video games as games of chance.

Cambria's challenge could also affect the amount of fees the city collects for such games. Hahn estimates that the city will collect $60,000 in fees this year from video games. He said before the Decemthat the city was collecting about $30,000 a year from other coinoperated games such as pool tables and "foosball."

Cambria said the law is "unequal" in its provisions. He said an arcade operator must shut down his machines at 11 p.m. while an establishment with less than four machines can keep the machines running after 11 p.m.

Cambria said the universal $75 licensing fee represented "gouging" on the city's part.

"We believe that this fee amounts to a penalty, not a regulation,' Cambria said. Arcade operators who attended Council hearings when the law was proposed complained that the fee was prohibitive and would discourage them from doing business in the city.

Hahn said there are currently eight licensed arcades in the city. Before the law was passed, there was no city law which defined an arcade. Also, before the law, the city charged lower annual licensing fees of $60 for each coin-operated bowling game, $30 for each video game, and $30 for other games.

Mary Louise Hayden, who will argue the case for the city, said yesterday that she had not yet prepared a defense. The case is scheduled for argument at 2 p.m. Friday in the last month alone, there have been three fatal truck accidents in the Buffalo area. First, there was the driver who pulled out on the highway in front of a Flickinger truck. She died after her car

In each of the accidents, the truck drivers were cleared of blame. But there is a difference between clearing a driving record and clearing a conscience.

"Even if it isn't their fault, it's something they have to live with." Yacyszyn says. "Nobody remembers that the driver of the truck still has it on his mind

The central issue of the session, which could last a week or more, is New York's property tax assessment system.

Six years ago, the Court of Appeals said the state's localities had been routinely ignoring New York's 200-year-old law requiring full-value assessment. Fractional assessment had become the norm and the court said that was illegal.

Since then, the Legislature has failed to do anything. The latest/ deadline the legislators set for themselves to face the issue expires Fri-status quo throughout the state leaving the mosaic-like assessment system largely in place while providing some special protection against large assessment increases for residents of New York City and Nassau County.

After spending just under an hour with Carey, Anderson and Fink reported that the governor, a proponent of full-value assessment, was playing his cards close to his chest.

The general mood of the leadership was that the bill was the best they were going to come up with. Fink and Anderson said they didn't expect either house to act on the bill. before tomorrow.

The 18-page bill itself is complicated, but it-means that the state law mandating full-value assessment would be repealed.

In its place, the Legislature would allow localities to continue to assess properties at some fractional amount of their real market value. The bill includes the following provi-

Ruling on Bias in School Aid Upheld

COURIER EXPRESS STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

New York State's school aid formulas, based on property taxes, discriminate against children inpoorer districts, a state appellate court declared

The ruling upheld the so-called Levittown decision that said the current system is unconstitutional.

It is unconstitutional, the court ruled, because there is an enormous gap in spending between school districts rish in property tax receipts, and in places like Buffalo, which are suffering a shrinking tax ...

Eugene T. Reville, Buffalo superintendent ofschools, could not be reached for comment last night.

Unless reversed in the Court of Appeals, the state's highest court, the ruling by the four-judge panel in New York City means the Legislature will have to revise formulas to increase money for education in big-city school districts and in poorer suburban districts.

Besides Buffalo, the suit was joined by New York City. Syracuse and Rochester, which argued that their school systems had to accommodate greater concentrations of poor children from neighborhoods of lower property values.

"In property poor districts, budgetary constraints limit local ability to provide desired educational output," the court said in a decision written by Judge Leon D. Lazer.

"The record before us establishes that many of the children who fail to obtain minimal skills are educable, and that properly staffed remedial programs, which afflicted school districts are prevented from providing because of fiscal constraints and misallocation of resources, do alleviate or totally remedy learning problems."

Attorney General Robert Abrams' office, which represents the defendant state agencies, including the office of the commissioner of education, said it would have no immediate comment on the ruling.

The state currently spends $10.8 billion a year on its public schools, of which $6.1 billion is raised locally, said Amy Plummer, assistant director of the Rubin Commission.

"Outside of the cities, almost all that $6.1 billion is property tax," she said.

According to commission figures, she said, the richest school district in the state that serves 2,000 or more children is Shoreham-Wading River on Long Island, and the poorest is-Indian River in Jefferson County. The Long Island district has $270,000 in taxable wealth behind each child and spends-$3,753 per child on education. Indian River's per-child wealth is $25,000 and the school spending is $1,829 per child.

The suit dates from April 21, 1976, when Levittown, a residential community without taxable big industries, complained that it had to tax its residents at higher rates than did its neighboring districts.

Pedestrian Mall Funding Request to Stretch Several Years

By Dale C. English COURIER-EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER

NIAGARA FALLS - The Niagara Frontier Transportation Authority's strategy for getting $24 million in federal money for the proposed Main Street pedestrian mall will involve spreading the request over several years, a key NFTA executive said yesterday.

We want to stretch the dollar requirements through 1984 and will probably only need a minimal amount of the money in the current 1982 (federal) fiscal year," NFTA Executive Director John F. Downing said

Downing was in Niagara Falls to participate in a rare meeting of the NFTA board of directors in Niagara County. The meeting was held in Niagara Falls to soothe Niagara County feelings that they are poor relations in congressmen to come up with a package acceptable to an authority favoring Erie County.

While the pedestrian mail wasn't on the routine best he could — how the NFTA could convince the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) it should provide $24 million toward construction of the mall to complement the rapid transit line in downtown money wouldn't be available because of federal-budgetbalancing problems.

Downing said yesterday the NFTA is developingplans to tell UMTA that only a "minimal" amount of the $24 million currently is needed. The rest could be spread over the following two years, he said.

He also said the plans involve "asking for a break in UMTA regulations which require you to have all the money in hand before you start work." The idea would be to get some of the money now, start the work, and try to get the rest later.

"We are working closely with our U.S. senators and them and to UMTA," Downing said.

The project involves converting 3,800 feet of Main agenda, Downing was more than willing to discuss - as Street from Goodell to South Park Avenue to a pedestrian mall complete with covered walkways, floral gardens, sidewalk cates and play areas and easy access to the rapid transit line. The total cost is projected to be about $42 million, with $12 million coming from money. Buffalo. UMTA told the NFTA 10 days ago that mall the NFTA already has and another $6 million from New York State.

> day, the NFTA directors took action on several other items. They included:

> Spending up to $36,049 in state money to study how its bulk cargo operation on the Buffalo waterfront could be expanded, or to see if existing bulk cargo areas other uses such as an industrial park.

> Awarding a $7,086.25 contract to Duncan Industries Inc. of Elk Grove-Village, Ill., to buy 29 parking meters to control short-term parking at Greater Buffalo International Airport. The NFTA claims the meters will enforce a quick turnover of parkers at airport passenger loading and unloading areas and produce at least $60,000 a year in extra money.

• Permitting dumping of masonery rubble from demolition of buildings on the Main-Genesee redevelopment project site in an area just south of the Small Boat Harbor on Fuhrmann Boulevard. The area already contains material dredged from Buffalo Harbor by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

• Ratifying a contract with International Long-While the mall simmered in the background yester-shoremen's Association, Local 2028 covering 77 NFTA office and clerical workers. The three-year pact with the new union provides 6-percent raises for the workers retroactive to Oct. 5 and again in 1982 and 1983. Their average salary is now about $14,000 a year. A similar pact covering another 140 blue collar workers at the along Fuhrmann Boulevard might be better suited to airport and on the waterfront who don't belong to the union also was approved.

The meeting followed a luncheon in John's Hotel Niagara involving NFTA people and Niagara County officials: Downing said the NFTA promised Niagara Falls Mayor Michael O'Laughlin it would do more at Greater Buffalo International Airport and at the downtown transit center to provide travelers with tourist information about the Falls.

Center to Treat Toxic Exposure

By Rich Scheinin

COURIER EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER

A coalition of veterans, environmental and community groups is attempting to establish what it hopes will be a unique multimillion-dollar medical center here for the diagnosis, treatment and research of illnesses caused by exposure to toxic che-

The coalition is searching in Buffalo for a site for a diagnostic and treatment clinic which, as planned, would go into operation before the related research facility. Grants from private foundations are being sought for the project. A spokesman for the group, Frank Falkowski, said a number of prominent medical specialists have agreed to serve on a national advisory board for the 'international environmental center," as it would be called.

Although a formal timetable has yet to be set for the project, Falkowski said it is hoped that work can begin on the clinic by next summer, with construction of the research facility later as funds are available.

As planned, it would serve people who believe they have suffered "chemical injuries" resulting, for instance, from expoyears; and. · Herbicides such as the military defoliant Agent Orange, sprayed by the U.S. military in Vietnam.

There are about 45,000 Vietnam veterans in Western New York. Many have complained that they suffer from cancer, neurological conditions and other ailments as a result of exposure to Agent Orange, which contained minute quantities of the chemical compound dioxin, also found at the Love Canal.

Although the federal government is conducting numerous studies of the effects of dioxin and says no clear evidence has been established linking it to most of these ailments, some veterans say the United States has not kept pace with European dioxin research. These veterans complain that, as a result, proper treatment is not available to them in this country. "A lot of people are being improperly diagnosed. A lot of doctors don't know what to look for," said Falkowski, who also serves as secretary of the veterans group Agent Orange Victims of New York and is a toxic substances counselor at the Veterans Helping Veterans Center on Harvard Place. "Nobody here is dealing with people. All the research is being done on laboratory animals and fish. We're hoping to perform the proper enzyme, hormonal and blood work on human beings: God knows what we'll turn up.' Falkowski said the center, according to plans, would utilize equipment capable, for example, of diagnosing minute quantities of dioxin in human tissue and chromosome breakage. The proposed center's staff, he said, would include about 100 persons, many of them technicians, pathologists, neurologists and other physicians. Any information developed by the proposed center, he stated, would be available to the chemical industry; the U.S. Veterans Administration and other government agen-

Among the phylcians serving on the coalition's national advisory board are Dr. Samuel S. Epstein, professor of occupational and environmental medicine at the University of Illinois Medical Center's School of Public Health in Chicago; and Dr. Pietro U. Capurro, a clinical pathologist who lives in Huntington Beach, Calif.

Epstein said this weekend that while he supports establishment of the proposed center, he thinks it is "unfortunate that places like Roswell Park haven't stepped into the breach that exists in this area.

Groups in the coalition include Agent Orange Victims of New York, Veterans Helping Veterans, Vietnam Veterans of America, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, citizens groups from the Love Canal and Bloody Run Creek neighborhoods in Niagara Falls, the Sierra Club and the New York Public Interest Research Group.

Nail Bomb Kills One in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebabon (AP) - A car debris over a five-square-block bomb packed with steel nails exploded yesterday on a shaded residential lane in Christian East Beirut. Police said it killed one person and wounded 20 others.

It was the fist bombing in the Christian sector of the divided city in six weeks, and many residents feared it signaled another round of terrorists warfare between rival militias in the half-Christian, half-Moslem nation.

That fear was bolstered later in the day by an unidentified caller to a Western news agency who vowed revenge for yesterday blast "with a more violent explosion." The bomb set 17 cars ablaze, heaved four of them 15 yards into a pastoral pine grove, and gouged a crater into the street that was large enough to bury half of another car. It shattered windows and scattered

Police said the 88-pound car-bomb was inside a German-made BMW, A leader of a Christian militia said the bomb consisted of a hydrogen-based mixture that is about 50 percent more powerful than TNT.

"This is Lebanon, People are killing civilians for the sake of killing, to scare us with death at any time. said a teary-eyed man who pointed to the smeared splashes of drying blood that she said had been shed by his wounded daughter.

The daughter was alive but cut in many places by pieces of glass, the man said.

Area residents said they were perplexed at why the bomb was set off on the lightly traveled street. They speculated that the bombers were unable to get through security checks to a more crowded area and picked Secteur Street at random.

Pope's Assailant Refuses Food

ASCOLI PICENO, Italy (AP) — Mehmet Ali Agca, convicted of trying to murder Pope John Paul II, has started a hunger strike at the maximum security prison where he is serving a life sentence, the news agency Italia said yesterday.

There was no word on when he began the strike or any demands the Turkish terrorist might have made. During his trial in July, Agea demanded he be turned over to Vatican authorities, and sald he would go on hunger strike if his demands were not met.

Under the terms of a 1929 treaty between the Vatican and Italy, people accused of crimes committed on Vatican soil are tried in Italy.

Soon after he was arrested for the May 13 shooting, Agca, 23, refused food for several days without making any specific demands.

Agca is being held in solitary confinement in a prison in this town 90 miles northeast of Rome.

Pope John Paul II holds two dolls as he listens to a girl during his visit to the Church of Jesus the Divine Worker in Rome on Sunday. The pontial resumed his weekly tour of the Rome Glocese for the first time since the attempt on his tile of May 13.

AWACS Sale Gains Offsetting Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) - With a climactic Senate vote just one day away, President Reagan launched an all-out blitz on the opposition yesterday in a bid to rescue his $8.5-billion arms sale to Saudi

Before the day was over, he had picked up one vote and the opposition had gained one from among senators previously uncommitted.

But Reagan did not convert any of those on record against the sale, and the opposition did not shake any of those backing the sale.

The president called seven senators to his study yesterday — five declared opponents and two who were undecided - and aides said he might talk to a dozen other senators before the showdown tomorrow aft-

He is trying to overcome opposition to the sale of AWACS radar planes and F-15 jet fighter weaponry, a plan already rejected by the House by a 301-111 vote. Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-

Colo., left the White House yesterday saying he was still undecided, but announced a few hours later that he will vote for the sale.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., who also had been uncommitted, took to the Senate floor even as the White House meetings were in progress to say he will vote against the sale. Leahy was not invited to the White House yesterday, but had met there with the president earlier.

Leany said the sale would "start an avalanche" of arms requests from other Arab countries and said the administration has no underlying Middle East policy to justify such sales.

Yesterday's announcements by Armstrong and Leahy raised the Senate lineup to 55-38 against the sale, according to the latest Associated Press count. The opposition includes 53 senators who have announced they op-are leaning against the deal.

One of the opponents invited to the White House yesterday, Sen. Roger W. Jepsen, R-Iowa, did not accept the invitation, and four other opponents - Sens. Mark Andrews, R-N.D.; Bob Kasten, R-Wis.; Howard Cannon, D-Nev.; and John Danforth, R-Mo. - said afterward that Reagan did not change their minds. Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, among the six who met Reagan yesterday, said afterward that he repose the sale plus two who say they promised the president to "think it

In another development, Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of California denied Reagan's charge over the weekend that opponents... "are not doing a service to the coun-

"It's not service to the country to support the president when he's wrong," Cranston told the Senate. "The administration apparently is seeking to make a scapegoat of Israel and Israel's friends in the United States," Cranston added. 'The administration has no one to blame but itself for its, problems with the Saudi arms package.

Opponents must win a majority of the senators present and voting, 51 if all senators vote, to win approval of a veto resolution against the sale.

Reagan to Seek More Money for Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration says it will ask Congress next year for money to strengthen the armed forces to meet the threat of a full-scale Soviet attack in the Middle East.

"We intend to tailor our forces, was "the most dangerous potential using those forces in the region plus reinforcement units from the U.S., to meet an evolving threat," the State and Defense departments have told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

The officials said a Soviet attack threat" to U.S. interests in the Middle East, and added that the United States is working toward an ability "to meet the most demanding threat" in the region.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the committee, released the administration's statements yesterday, describing them as "important and disturbing. "Those who believed that the Reagan administration had already proposed a dramatic buildup in our military forces may have a surprise coming," Reuss said. "How many billions more will be required in the Persian Gulf?"

The committee had asked officials of the two departments a series of questions about the administration's military plans and its commitments in the Middle East.

In their joint response, the two departments said that "the most dangerous potential threat to U.S. interests in the region would be a Soviet attack, perhaps at the invitation of some faction in a regional state or on a pretext designed to exploit regional instability.

"We are on a path towards development of a capability to meet the most demanding threat in the region which, inherently, will also provide the concepts and tailored forces necessary to cope with many lesser threats," they added.

"Since the Soviets would need time to build up their forces for a major incursion in the area, we could use that time to deploy forces to meet that challenge should it become necessary. We are in the process of expanding our capabilities to deploy forces and to sustain them "

The Soviets have distinct advantages in terms of projecting power into the region given their close proximity to the area," they said. "Consequently, there is a need for progressive military development to possible Soviet incurdeal with

No monetary figures were mentioned yesterday. The officials said the requirements are being studied and will be presented to Congress when the administration presents its budget for the 1983 fiscal year. This is due in January.

The United States has "a general policy commitment to the security and integrity of friendly states in the area, affirmed by the previous and the present administration." the officials said.

Reuss said the departmental responses suggest that the administration "is prepared to undertake 'commitments' to the military security of the Persian Gulf states for which it has not requested or received congressional approval, contrary to the constitutional procedure and longestablished practice."

"With any level of expenditure, it is doubtful we can achieve the capability which the administration needs," Reuss added.

"It is not clear that there is any way, short of nuclear weapons, that the United States can project enough force into the region to provide an effective defense," he said.

Reuss added that while a direct overland attack by the Soviet Union "is clearly the most dramatic potential threat, it is far from the most likely."

The administration has spelled out a dangerous strategic doctrine, which may return to haunt us in the months and years to come." he said.

The committee staff, in an analysis accompanying release of the administration responses, said

Israel-Egypt Pursue Accord About Council

JERUSALEM (AP) — Istael and Egypt shifted strategy yesterday in negotiations on Palestinian self-rule, seeking swift agreement on an elected council to govern Israeli-occupied territories, Prime Minister Menachem Begin said.

The issues of water rights, control of state land and internal security apparently will be dropped from the agenda until an agreement on the council is reached.

NATO Plans Unaffected By Protests, Aide Says

senior U.S. official said after consultations with NATO allies here yesterday that huge anti-nuclear demonstrations over the weekend have not altered the alliance's plans for deploying medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

The official, who asked not to be named, spoke after a special NATO panel was briefed on the Reagan administration position in the upcoming U.S. Soviet talks on restraining nuclear weapons in Europe.

"We take (the demonstrations) seriously as at least the expression of the opinion of a fairly substantial number of Europeans," the official. said, adding that the protests were not brought up at the panel's meet-

The official said the peaceful protests, which drew a total of 600,000 people to rallies in London, Paris, Brussels and Rome, will force "no change of attitude" by NATO members about deploying a new generation of nuclear missiles in Western

British and U.S. diplomats in London, speaking privately yesterday, took note of the demonstrations and the Dutch Labor Party's resolution opposing a NATO ministers' statement affirming the deployment plans.

"If the Dutch do not finally accept the missiles, we will obviously have * to revise the deployment," said a British source who asked not to be identified.

Britain's Foreign Office asked for comment on the wave of protests in European cities, referred to recent statements by Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington expressing the 'great concern and anxiety" of Europeans about the nuclear arms

The Dutch Labor Party, part of the center-right coalition Cabinet that has resigned over a domestic. dispute on economic policies, unanimously endorsed a weekend resolution saying the Dutch government "can take no responsibility for those sections of the NATO communique that state the need for the modernization and deployment of nuclear arms."

The Dutch Cabinet is staying on while efforts to resolve the economic dispute continue. The Netherlands and Belgium, two of the countries that would get the missiles, have not yet agreed to take the warheads. U.S. officials have said a decision rejecting them would force NATO to reduce the number of missiles deployed or to seek other bases for them.

In Ottawa, Canadian Adm. Robert Falls said NATO should launch a coordinated disarmament strategy to reassure "frightened citizens" in Europe and counter propaganda from Moscow.

Falls, head of the military committee that advises NATO's political leaders, told reporters he hoped the anti-nuclear demonstrations would not undermine the alliance, but added, "I confess it is a danger."

He proposed linking disarmament talks on both conventional and nuclear weapons to assure Europe of balanced reductions.

A Canadian legislator, New Democrat Jim Fulton of British Columbia, introduced a motion in the House of Commons "to go on record calling for nuclear disarmament an Europe and throughout the world." The motion did not receive sufficient votes to be debated.

The 13 NATO ministers last week reaffirmed plans to begin deploying the new U.S. missiles starting in 1983. It was not a final vote on deployment, however, and was made after U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger pledged U.S. negotiators will consider proposing to reduce, rather than just restrain, deployment of missiles in Europe.

The U.S. official here said "differences of opinion" between Washington and the European NATO allies over what the U.S. posture should be in the arms talks starting Nov. 30 in Geneva, Switzerland, were resolved.

"We have been able to reconcile these differences fairly easily," the official said. When asked what the differences were, he declined to elaborate beyond "differences in approach.'

In Washington, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said: "...The president has made it clear he favors arms reduction, not just arms limitation."

NATO favors arms reductions to the lowest possible level ... (which) could include the possibility of a 'zero' outcome under ideal circumstances and on a basis of reciprocity," the U.S. official here said yesterday.

According to NATO figures, the Soviet Union has to date deployed 750 SS-20 warheads. In 1979, NATO agreed to balance this by deploying 572 ground-launched cruise and Pershing II missiles in West Germa-The autopsy on Latola Reddish ny, Britain, Italy, the Netherlands and Belgium. The "zero option" calls for canceling deployment of the additional missiles in return for a reduction of the Soviet warheads.

A West German newspaper yesterday quoted Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu as urging the United States to agree not to proceed with deployment if the Soviets withdraw their SS-20 warheads.

The Netherlands and Belgium are each to receive 48 cruise missiles under the NATO plan, but the governments are divided over accepting them because of the growing public opposition.

Newspaper editorialists generally said the protests underscored the strong public opposition to deploying more nuclear missiles.

Edith Head, Costume Artist Of Stars, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Edith Head, whose costumes for glamorous stars such as Sophia Loren and Elizabeth Taylor won her a record eight Oscars, has died of a rare bone disease.

The announcement was made yesterday by the designer's attorney, John T. Piggot, who said that she died Saturday night of myelofibrosis myeloid metaplasia, described as an inability of the bone marrow to produce blood.

Like many Hollywood figures, Miss Head kept her age secret, but she was believed to be in her 80s. She left no close relatives. Her husband, art director Wiard B. Ihnen, himself an Oscar winner, died severał years ago.

During her 50 years of dressing Hollywood's most famous stars, Miss Head became a familiar figure herself. But although she enjoyed appearing on TV talk shows, she was careful not to upstage the stars in the design salon.

Her sense of survival permitted longstanding relationships with some of the most temperamental and demanding actresses. She also designed clothes for Fred Astaire, Cary Grant and other male stars. Her last Oscar came in 1976 for "The Sting," starring Paul Newman and Robert Redford.

Miss Head's first Academy Award was for "The Heiress" in 1949, the second year that the costume design award was given. Her other Oscar winners were for "All about Eve," Samson and Delilah," "A Place in the Sun," "Roman Holiday," "Sabrina" and "The Facts of Life."

Miss Head was born in Los Angeles and grew up in Searchlight. Nev., a mining town. She majored in French and Spanish at UCLA and Stanford and taught at an exclusive girls' school in La Jolla.

Weary of low pay, she studied design at Los Angeles art schools and found work as a sketch artist in the costume department of Paramount Studios during the Depression.

Her first major assignment was designing gowns for Mae West in 'She Done Him Wrong." She recalled Miss West's instructions: "Let's make it tighter, Edith, so they can tell I'm a girl from all an-

U.S. to Alter Index Of Consumer Prices

WASHINGTON - The government plans to announce today it will rewrite the much-criticized housing component of the Consumer Price Index, a move that would eventually affect cost-of-living increases for millions of Americans.

The change, Labor Department officials said yesterday, is aimed at eliminating from the index the distorting impact of mortgage interest rates and overemphasis on housing. These have resulted in the overstatement of the overall inflation rate in times of high interest rates, the officials said. The change would affect Social Security recipients and those on federal pensions and for workers whose wages are tied to the CPI. This could lead to smaller increases in government spending.

The main change will be to move from the current housing component, which includes house prices and mortgage interest rates directly, to one that measures the cost of shelter with some sort of rental

Administration officials said the new measure would not be effective until sometime in 1983 because of the need for the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which compiles the CPI, to give adequate notice.

Dr. Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, will announce the change at Norwood nor members of her staff would comment on the details of the announcement. But Labor Department officials and members of the Reagan administration supplied some of the details.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics now publishes an experimental housing cost component, which is similar to the new housing cost measure to be announced today. Based on this experimental index, the cost-of-living increases for Social Security recipients on July 1 would have been 10.3 percent, compared with the 11.2 perent increase based on the current index.

The millions of American workers whose wage hikes are tied to movements of the CPI would also have lower increases? One of the other key impacts of the change will be onindexing of individual income tax brackets, starting in 1985. With lower rises in the CPI, the indexing of tax brackets would leave the government with slightly more revenue.

The basic change, for which the final details will be worked out over the next year, is that housing costs will be measured as if the owner were paying a rent. The rent would be based on the cost of operating a home, including property taxes, repairs, insurance, regular mainte-

Sisti Says Woman Got Impressionist Art for $15

BUFFALO (AP) - An artist who also cleans and restores old paintings said yesterday that he believes a small landscape purchased for about $15 at a garage sale recently is the work of French Impressionist Alfred Sisley — and that it could be worth up to $500,000.

Anthony Sisti, curator of his own art gallery, uncovered a signature resembling Sisley's in the lower right corner of the 7-by-10-inch canvas last week. He said he trusts its veracity — despite the appearance of what appears to be the initials "J L" in the work's lower left corner.

"I don't know what in the world that thing can be," he said. "I know Sisley. I have complete confidence it's a Sisley. I don't think (the other initials) overpower it. I can tell by the authenticity of the age, for one thing. If you put a magnifying glass to that canvas you'll know that's Alfred Sisley, who lived from 1839 to 1899, was a contemporary of painters such as August Renoir, Claude Monet, Camille Pissarro and Vincent van Gogh.

The woman who purchased the painting at a private rummage sale declined to be identified.

She said that the word that her find may be a treasure came as a complete surprise.

"I bought it for the frame," she said, adding that all one could see of the painting was that "it was a landscape, but there were no colors in it

Still, she brought the painting, its frame and another old painting to Sisti for cleaning.

Using a sponge and the suds derived from rubbing two halves of a potato together, the 80-year-old Buffalo artist said he began work at 2 o'clock one morning last week.

As the first two letters of the name came out, Sisti, whose signature resembles that of the Impressionist painter, said he first thought the painting was one of his own. Then came the letters, LEY.

"I got excited. I continued to look at that more and more," he said. He y out a print of a Sisley painting and compared the signatures. They matched.

"I said, 'My God, it is a Sisley,' " Sisti recalled - adding that he did not sleep the rest of the night.

Sisti estimated the painting's value at "somewhere between $250,000 and $500,000."

Medical investigators and police are unable to determine the cause of their deaths and are not sure if they are dealing with a string of homicides or some rare disease. They are hoping more tests will solve the mysterv.

"We have no idea what killed them," said Joel Smith, police detective in this southeast Georgia town. "We just know things like this don't happen every day.

"It's hard not to think there's some foul play in it, but we have no proof," he said yesterday. The father, whose name was not released, did not live with any of the Proposition No. 2 would reduce the number of council members to 12, eliminating one district and two at-large seats. The best argument for its approval is simple arithmetic: Buffalo's population-has dwindled from 575,000 in 1930 — when each district councilman represented about 60,000 constituents — to just over 350,000 in 1980. Eliminating one district seat would increase the constituency from the present 36,000 to about 45,000.

The saving to the city taxpayers has been estimated at $3 million over the next 10 years. These funds could be better used to maintain vital services such as police and firefighting, whose ranks have been cut by 20 to 30 percent

Unlike a more radical proposal to eliminate all six at-large seats, which was defeated by the voters in 1979, this amendment would keep the balance between district and at-large seats created by the original Kenefick Charter Commission in 1927. The number of votes for a veto override would change from 10 to 8. This would not seriously affect the legislative check on the executive branch intended by the original drafters.

It is true, as opponents of the change argue, that city problems have increased while the population has fallen and that residents need more from government. The bulk of welfare recipients and "working poor" live in the city. But government programs designed to help the less fortunate also have grown.

The 20 percent reduction in the number of council members would be consistent with the 22.7 percent decrease in the city's population over the last decade. It also would be consistent with efforts to hold down the size of government and reduce the tax burden. A similar approach was reflected in the reduction of the Eric County Legislature from 20 to 17 members.

The executive branch has been growing over the last 50 years, too, which brings us to Proposition No. 3: "Shall the Department of the Treasury of the City of Buffalo be abolished and the function ... transferred to the Department of Administration and Finance?" Our reply: unequivocally yes. The city treasurer is a $20,000-plus political appointment that has outlived its usefulness. Eliminating it and switching the 17 staff members to the Administration and Finance Department would hurt no one — including Treasurer Irene Drajem, who is retiring at the end of Proposition No. 1 would create an 11-member unsalaried Citizens Advisory Committee on Reapportionment. Without staff or budget, it is questionable whether this committee would have much impact on the decennial council redistricting. However, it could help focus public attention on the process, and put some pressure on political leaders to be more open in their deliberations. It's worth a try.

A Vote for More Jobs

It was recently reported that a $6.5 million expansion of the Dunkirk Ice Cream Co., creating 100 new jobs, got a major boost from a $729,000 loan approved by the State Job Development Authority. This was the latest in a long series of JDA-aided job-creating expansions totaling $43 million in Erie, Niagara, Chautauqua and Cattaraugus Counties over the last 19 years.

The JDA would like to do more, but is hamstrung by the outdated $150 million bonding limit imposed when it was created in 1962. State Amendment No. 1 on the Nov. 3 ballot would double JDA bonding capacity to $300 million. Its approval is vital to the Western New York economy with its high unemployment rate and history of losing industry and business to the Sunbelt and areas closer to Doubling the JDA's bonding capacity will cost state taxpayers nothing. The agency has been self-supporting since its inception. Its staff of 22 is paid by fees included in the low-interest loans it makes to the private sector, and the default rate is below 1.5 percent. Statewide, the JDA has made more than 1,200 loans worth more than $190 million, creating or retaining an estimated 90,000 jobs.

The defeat of this amendment in 1977 and 1979 defies explanation: Some voters apparently believed that it involved spending tax dollars. It does not. A plurality of the electorate did not even vote on the amendment in either

This is too important an issue for apathy to carry the day. In Erie County alone, the JDA has taken part in business expansions totaling nearly $19 million which held or. created over 4,000 jobs. A vote for Amendment No. 1 would allow it to do more.

🍟 Carl T. Rowan Egypt's Hard-Liner

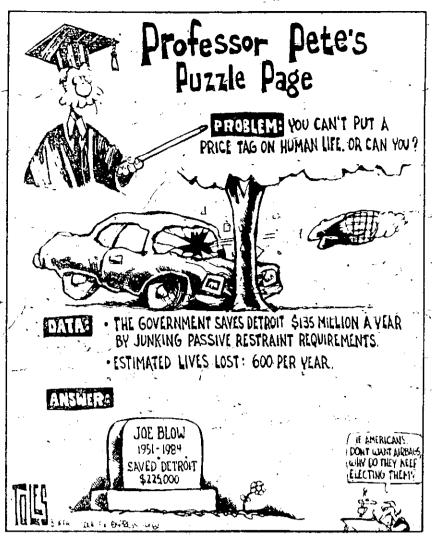

WASHINGTON - Despite Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak's assertion that he will follow the policies of assassinated leader Anwar Sadat, there already is strong evidence that Mubarak will put Egypt on another track.

Israeli and American leaders are saying privately that the Camp David peace process won't go much further because the Egyptians who have Mubarak's ear have long believed that Sadat was being suckered.

The Mubarak adviser mentioned most often is Usama al-Baz, an undersecretary in the Foreign Ministry who has served since December, 1977, as director of political affairs in Mubarak's office of the vice presidency. The Asraelis consider Baz a "hard-liner" who they claim once refused to shake the hand of Ezer Weizman when he was Israel's defense minister and one of the more 'reasonable" members of the Begin government

Baz, a Harvard-educated lawver and career foreign service officer, accompanied Sadat on his historic trip to Jerusalem in November, 1977 and to Washington in March, 1979, for the signing of the Egyptam-Israeli peace treaty But many Israelis believe that Baz's heart never was in the

Writer Rapped For Poor Taste

Editor: Three cheers for McMa-

Jay Boyar attacks the restaurant's dress code in "Images," Oct. 22 in the Courier. "Images" indeed! Apparently good taste and class have not been Mr. Boyar's strong suits. Many people eat out occasionally to enjoy not only good food but the decor and their fellow diners. They don't dress to impress their cuisine, they dress because they are going out.

Buffalo takes enough raps as a lunch bucket town. Lunch buckets are okay but so are fine restaurants. There's a place for both . . . a clientele for both. If Mr. Boyar showed up at a dinner party we were giving wearing "casual but clean polo shirt, jeans and sneakers," he would have had his first and last invita-

His hunger can be satisfied at a pizza joint. His lack of taste won't show there and even his "humble powers of comprehension" won't be taxed too severely. And we can pass him off as from out of town.

Budget Protesters Termed Ignorant

Editor: Recent protests toward Mr. Reagan's budget cutting show that gross public ignorance of economic reality is still very strong. These protesters, with loud mouths and little understanding, continue to insist that we can today subsidize yesterday's lifestyles with tomorrow's resources. We can't!

A little child believes that the polio needle is very painful because he has no concept of the disease. Like such children, these protesters have no idea of real economic disease and therefore cry over Mr. Reagan's economic cure. It seems that being adult means to let one's wisdom and reason control one's crying

It's time to face facts: This country togay runs the risk of going broke, a far more catastrophic event than simple budget cuts. The "great Red threat" is in our nation's own income statement, not in Moscow And Mr Reagan is trying like hell to put this country back in the

The protesters continue to worry about program cuts, never thinking as to whether such programs will even exist in five years (or whether they were ever needed in the first place) Otherwise they would realize that Mr. Reagan, unlike themselves, can see farther than six inches beyond his nose

The Bigger Issue

WASHINGTON - While the world watches, President Reagan engages in a spectacular confrontation with Congress over who makes American foreign policy. At issue is the proposed sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi

Mr. Reagan hurried back from Cancun to take personal charge of lobbying the AWACS battle in the Senate, a battle which teeters in the balance with a vote scheduled. tomorrow afternoon.

Subsidiary issues have come to have equal or greater importance, some think, than the military and political significance of the $8.5 billion deal itself."

Mr. Reagan is the third president in 11 years to be challenged in a foreign affairs battle. And again, as in some past contests, an influential ethnic-lobby could figure prominently in the outcome. Abroad, uneasiness is registered over which voice in Washington is the authentic one speaking on international affairs.

The Reagan administration proposed the sale to oil-producing Saudi Arabia on the grounds that it would help stabilize the Middle East. But Israel holds that the sale threatens its security. The House rejected it 301 to 111. It will go through, however, unless the Senate also vetoes it. The lobbying has become so intense that President Reagan told a news conference that it is "not the business of other nations to make American foreign policy." This followed a visit of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin:

THE CONSTITUTION leaves uncertain who makes American foreign policy, the President or Congress. There have been explosions in the past, like the rejection of the League of Nations. Until Watergate and Vietnam, there was a lengthy period of congressional quiesence. The following five examples show Congress in a new aggressive phase.

1. Vietnam: Congress took control of ending the unpopular war. In 1969, it banned introduction of US combat troops in Laos and Thailand. It passed the 1973 War Powers Resolution Act over presidential veto (requiring legislative sanction before use of troops). Eventually Congress wrote a ridof labor, civil rights activists, senior er into an appropriations bill telling the president to stop bombing Cambodia.

2. Soviet trade and Jewish emigration: Congress insisted on writing a condition to a proposal by Richard Nixon in 1974 to give the Soviet Union most-favorednation status in widening trade The Soviets would only get such concession under the Jackson-Vanik amendment' (Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio) if it loosened up on emigration of Jews. The Soviets at first seemed to agree, then backed off when Senator Jackson specifically cited an emigration level of 60,000 a year, or 70 percent above the 1973 rate. Strong-ethnic lobbying supported him, but Moscow ultimately balked. Emigration at one point dropped to 15,000. Jackson still held out for a Soviet commitment to "free; emigration.".

A 11

3. Cyprus (1974): Congress overrode President Ford and penalized Turkey for invading Greek Cyprus with legislation cutting off further military aid. This time the ethnic lobby pushing the legislation was Greek. In return, Turkey suspended use of US bases within its borders. Mr. Ford twice vetoed the aid embargo. Foreign, policy was the issue, he pleaded. The action, he argued, undermined the NATO alliance while America lost use of critical military bases. Congress relented only when President Carter took office in 1978, lifting the embargo.

4. ANGOLA (1975): President

Ford called it "a deep tragedy" and "an abdication of responsibility" when Congress cut off Foreign Assistance Act funds in a Soviet-American clash over which rival sides to support in Angola, a former Portuguese colony. Russia used Cuban troops and South Africa invaded in October 1975. The US began giving covert aid to their own rival group. No, said Congress. The Senate voted 54 to 22 against the US aid, and the House 323 to 99. Mr. Ford said that because of Congress the Soviets had gained "a stronghold in Africa," and Henry Kissinger declared, "We had them defeated in Angola, and then we defeated ourselves."

5. Salt II (1980): While nuclear arms anxieties spread in Europe, President Carter ceased to push the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty which he had signed after the Soviets invaded Afghanistan. Prior to that, the Senate showed no sign of giving the two-thirds treaty ratification required by the Constitution. Mr. Reagan calls the treaty "fatally flawed." Technically it is still on the Senate's agenda.

Steel Bill Again

IN AN APPARENT bid to portray Democratic Gov. Hugh L. Carey as a cold, uncaring politician, three Western New York, Republican assemblymen, including Minority Leader James L. Emery, are resurrecting the Buy American Steel bill which the governor vetoed last March 24

Emery, who would like to be the GOP gubernatorial nominee against Carey next year, may even kick up a fuss about the veto at this week's special session of the Legislature. The minority leader, together with Assemblymen John B. Sheffer of Amherst and Richard L Kennedy of Boston, are calling for a legislative override at the special session.

The veto is a sexy issue for the GOP in the Buffalo area where 30 to 35 per cent of all steel workers are out of work-

THE BILL WOULD give domestic steel producers, including the Bethlehem plant here, preferential treatment over imported steel producers who bid on state contracts.

In his veto, which infuriated Western New York labor, Carey said last March that the domestic steel industry is now healthier. and that foreign countries will not invest in New York State if the state tries to bar their products

Sheffer and Kennedy are also having some fun with Assemblyman Vincent J. Graber, D-West Seneca, the prime force behind the bill last session

In calling on Graber to lead the charge on an override, Sheffer and Kennedy are fearful that "Mr Graber is toeing the line drawn by his Democratic executive leader, Mr Carey

ALTHOUGH THE STATE Board of Elections has made no announcements, the word is that allegations of voter registration fraud here have not exactly seized the minds and hearts of board staffers Staffers were here 10 days ago in response to a Republican sponsored resolution in the County Legislature asking for the probe. Five witnesses gave sworn testimony to the board. However, the betting in political circles is that it will be a no hits, no runs, no errors type of thing.

In any event, the board is not empowered to prosecute even if it feels there is evidence of fraud. In that event, the matter would be turned over to District Attorney Edward C. Cosgrove who would then decide on his own whether the matter should go to a grand  $\star\star\star$

JACK F. KEMP'S tax cut supply-side economics is expected to win deafening applause at an interesting state Conservative Party fund raiser next Monday at the Stock Exchange Lunch Club, 11 Wall St., Manhattan

For $200, you can listen to a 90 minute panel discussion on economics involving Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato, R-NY, Lawrence A. Kudlow, assistant director for economic policy, Office of Management and Budget; GOP gubernatorial hopeful Lewis E. Lehrman, president of the Lehrman Institute; and Sen. William V Roth Jr., R-Delaware, the coauthor of the Kemp-Roth tax cut

Following the heady economic discussion, there will be a 5.30 pm cocktail reception. Leave it to the Conservatives to than half the country's 49 provinces - and therefore less amenable to negotiation.

Most Poles, who are accustomed to seeing army officers working on roads or in the fields at harvest time, are not worried about the military involvement, although some point out that the troops could be. used for keeping the peace.

The latter interpretation has notbeen discouraged by the authorities. A statement from Tadeusz Hupalowski, the minister of administration, local economy and environmental protections, indicated that the function of the military teams, which he said would operate in about 2,000 rural communes, would include supervising the flow of supplies, aiding transportation and health services in the winter and "helping to maintain law and order and counteract local conflicts."

In announcing the military teams last Friday, Jerzy Urban, the government spokesman, said, "Their main duty will be to signal directly all negative phenomena, to oppose them and give indispensable assistance to society and local authorities in order to ensure the constitutional order and that the law is observed."

This raised the possibility that the units could be used as an informational network, to keep the central authorities apprised of the political fever in the countryside, and also as enforcement teams to crack down on, among other things, the dissemination of "anti-socialist" liter-

Sources have said there would be about 833 units, each a three- to four-man team. Their deployment yesterday appeared to cause barely a ripple. A spot check of industrial Solidarity chapters, which are mostly located in the cities, turned up none that had spotted any of the military teams.

The statement setting down the government's uncompromising life toward the strike planned for tomorrow was issued after a meeting of the leaders of the national unity front - the grouping of three legal political parties, dominated by the Communists, that draws up lists of candidates for Parliament.

Among those attending the meeting were Gen. Wojciech Jaruyelski, the new party leader and also prime minister, and Kazimierz Barcikowski, a ranking Politburo member. Leaders were also present from the other two parties: the Democratic Party, which is supposed to represent intellectuals, and the United Peasants Party, which is for farmers. One interesting sidelight of the political changes in Poland has been that the Democratic and Peasants Party, longtime allies of the Communist Party, have been showing signs of independence.

They were not evident yesterday, however, as the leaders joined in a condemnation of Solidarity. "Every step by the government to improve the situation is blocked by elements within Solidarity." said the joint

A resident of a beachfront condominium called police at 5:30 a.m. to report groups of Haitians walking along the beach. Within minutes, the first bodies began washing ashore along a 11/2 -mile strip of private beach below luxury high-rises in the town of 2,400 people.

' Among the bodies was that of an obviously pregnant woman, her arms stiffly reaching out over her swollen stomach. The youngest appeared to be an adolescent with a stubble of beard on his chin. His hand had clawed deep into the sand.

Paramedics examined the bodies, then put them in plastic bags for bulldozers to scoop up, four or five at a time. From the bulldozers, the transportation to the Broward County Morgue.

'It's the most ghastly thing I've ever seen," said Mary Shea, who said she and her husband Ed looked out this morning to see eight bodies outside their condominium.

Residents provided sheets to dry some of the survivors, and covered the dead with other sheets before authorities arrived.

Gale said the Coast Guard still isn't sure exactly when and where the vessel broke up.

Where she next takes her campaign to clean up the neighborhood depends on what she and the candidate work out over the next few days, Ms. Ginsberg said.

Whatever they decide, however, a small park across the street from the store where Mrs. Normile was shot will remain high on her personal anti-crime campaign hit list. She wants it closed because, she charges, "teen-age hoodlums" hang out there at night drinking beer, smashing bottles, and "doing whatever else comes into their minds." She also wants more police patrols in the area. Despite her fears, however, she's not going to buy a gun. "I'll just call the police for protection, I trust them to protect me. Buy a gun? Absolutely not," she said.

The thought of buying a gun for protection, however, "has crossed my mind more than once, especially after yesterday's murder," Cindy Nowak of St. James Place said. "But I haven't done it yet and probably won't."

After hearing of the killing she was "afraid to leave my apartment but I had to, I had groceries to buy."

Up and down the street, she said, people talked to her about the killing "but what surprised me was that business, even at the store, went on as usual."

Like many others, she was both angry and sorry about the killing.

'I felt really angry about it, and Last week, two Haitian nationals sorry for the woman. Sunday's killing, added to a growing list of muggings and robberies in the neighborhood where college students rub elbows with longtime residents, has made Mrs. Reed uncom? fortable and afraid, at times, to leave her house.

'Today's our anniversary," she said, "and we were invited out to dinner but we won't go. We won't leave the house at night."

She wants more security at the stores "to protect the customers and their employees.

Hers is a sentiment shared by at least some merchants.

Sandy Saada came out from behind the counter at The Yumm Wich Shop to admit that she, too, is "worried" about the crime in the area. Sunday's killing spurred her to start leaving a large dog in the store at night, something she usually does in the winter months when "it gets dark earlier and business falls off so the place isn't as crowded at night as it is in the summer.'

"But when I heard about the shooting, I decided to bring the dog in earlier than usual," she said.

Now that banks are operating some services in grocery stores, many people expect more robberies like Sunday's to take place. Mrs. operated the bank outlet. When the easy availability of guns is combined with high unemployment and the fact that grocery stores aren't as secure as banks, they say, armed hoodlums will aim for the easy

'Seemed Forever,' A Witness Recalls

It will be a long time before Cynthia Hayes forgets her shopping trip to the Bells Supermarket at 765 Elmwood Ave. Sunday morning.

Ms. Hayes was one of the shoppers who witnessed the robbery that claimed the life of Bells employee. Esther Normile. She was one of those who crouched on the floor of the store for what "seemed like forever" while two armed men warned that "if everyone stays down, no one will get hurt."

Ms. Hayes, 31, who works in the Courier-Express library, stopped at the Bells store Sunday morning after church to buy some supplies for a picnic. She ran into Bells while her husband and their 152month-old son, Peter, went to a nearby store to buy a newspaper. She said she was standing in the checkout line, and didn't notice anything unusual until one of the cashiers, Mrs. Normile, headed for the office to get something for one of the other employees. "The next thing I knew, there was a man with a gun standing right next to me," she said.

"For the first few seconds I was thinking, 'This isn't really happenshe said. The gunman ordered the shoppers and employees to get down on the floor and Ms. Hayes crouched near the checkout counter, just a short distance from the store's office, which one of the men entered with Mrs. Normile.

"I kept thinking I didn't want to be shot in the head, so I tried to bury my head in some of the displays they had near the checkout," she said. "I was shaking and my heart was racing," she said. "It seemed like forever, but it couldn't have lasted more than five minutes." she said. There were two other persons huddled next to Ms. Hayes, "and all of us were breathing hard," she said. Then she heard "some sort of commotion" in the office, a gunshot and Mrs. Normile's scream. "When we heard the gunshot, everybody kind of gasped. It was just a terrible feeling, hearing that sound," she said.

Then, "I thought maybe they had gone because it was very quiet." Ms. Hayes said. "I stood up and saw the manager in the office calling the police. I figured it was safe then because he was calling the police." She then went into the office to see if there was anything she could do to help Mrs. Normile.

The young woman was lying on the floor and appeared to be unconscious. "I didn't know what to do," Ms. Hayes said. "I tried to comfort her. I brushed her hair out of her face . . . I wished I could have done something for her."

While Ms. Hayes was involved in the ordeal in the Bells store, her husband and son were waiting outside. While she was obeying the gunman's orders to "stay down," she worried that "my husband would walk in there with the baby, looking for me. I thought one of the robbers was standing by the door, and I was worried what would happen if he walked in."

Her husband didn't realize anything was wrong in the store until police and an ambulance arrived. Ms. Hayes said. "Somebody had yelled out that a woman had been shot,2 but her husband couldn't find out who had been hurt, she said. "When the ambulance left he tried to get in to see who it was. I could see him doing this from inside the store, and it was a terrible feeling of frustration, not being able to tell

Police later searched both residences, with search-warrant authority, and said they found a loaded .22-caliber revolver and some marijuana. Detectives said the gun they found was not the one used in the slaying of Mrs. Normile.

The slug recovered after the killing appeared to be from a .357-caliber gun and may have been fired from a .357-magnum revolver, aid detectives. Witnesses told police both men were armed, but only one was in the cashier's cage with Mrs. Normile, while the other stood outside with a bag, presumably for the money.

About 40 customers and employees were in the store at the time of the robbery and shooting. Police said one of the men ordered those within view of the cashier's cage to lie on the floor, threatening to kill any who failed to comply.

Police said Falzone and Cordova were each identified, through photographs, by four persons who had been in the store. Both men also appeared in lineups, and their attorney, Harold J. Boreanaz, yesterday asked Judge Forma to protect the two defendants from newspaper and television pictures since additional lineups were scheduled for them.

School Never Was Cup of Tea

he Cheap Gourmet was not a model student. Mail addressed to him in class was routinely forwarded to the punishment bench in the principal's office. Those memories repeated like ripe cole slaw when he went to lunch with Miss Barbie, the he'd had a teacher like this in second grade, he'd never have yearned for third.

The noise level approached that of a nuclear test as the Cheap Gourmet and Miss Barbie walked into the cafeteria. Short people shuffled through an S-shaped queue. The Cheap Gourmet feared stepping on his fellow diners but Miss Barble led him around a corner to the faculty

The Cheap Gourmet picked up a pale blue tray imprinted "Buffalo School Lunch" and stood by the silverware. "Now you move down the line so other people can put their trays down," Miss Barble said patiently. He jerked forward. "You just say you want a lunch," Miss Barble instructed.

A pleasant woman served him a chopped-meat barbecue on a bun, an ice cream scoop of rice, a paper cup of fruit salad, many, many peas, a container of milk and a bag of unsalted peanuts. He paid $1.66. Miss Barbie eschewed the goobers and got off for $1.50.

"If you want salt or pepper, you have to do it here," said Miss Barbie. He inverted a large shaker of amazingly free-flowing pepper which made his rice look like chocolate-chip ice cream.

They sat amid five youngsters, all happily ignoring their own plates. which had the same meal the Cheap Gourmet had with one exception. The Cheap Gourmet complimented them on finishing their peas. Nobody had gotten any peas, it turned out, nor did they covet his.

Seeking a clue to the meal, he noted the rice on the plate of James, to his right, and asked, "Should I be eating this rice?"

"No," James declared. The Cheap Gourmet felt well

"Eat your own rice," James finished.

So he did. It was dry, passable, better than some in alleged Chinese restaurants. A good barbecue, meaty and not at all greasy, softened up a bun crusty enough to be promoted. The Cheap Gourmet could have eaten another order. The peas, of a fairly low grade and barely room temperature, reminded him why he had abhorred them for so many years. The fruit salad also resurrected old prejudices - he never got enough cherries and diced pears have a bad complexion. Miss Barbie patriotically said Waterfront serves the best school lunch in town. The youngsters pay up to $1. One showed a box of raisins which he said had cost 11 cents. The Cheap Gourmet was relieved when his tablemates shared his peanuts. He'd thought some were on a hunger strike. When the five boys rose to return their trays to the disposal, they took away two entire sandwiches and most of two others. James the Rice ate everything, including a sandwich acquired from a dissatisfied brown-bazzer.

Miss Barble's lunchtime was a perpetual interruption of affectionate youngsters.

"I got something to tell you," one said. "Good news or bad news?" she inquired. "Bad news."

"Tell me later, this is lunchtime," she said, and he agreed.

A oung Jorge called the Cheap Gourmet's business card "a check," bringing a swarm of youngsters saying, "Whatever you gave him, give me one too." When he ran out of cards, the youngsters took their seats. A monitor held up two fingers for silence. The Cheap Goormet would have joined her but the last time be held up his hand be got the bill at Mulligan's.

They all filed out then, sidestepping the mashed remains of somebody else's peas, and Miss Barbie took the Chesp Gostmet back to class, where the rossesters sang him a choras of "Ghoul Days" and James the Rice ate his business card for dessert.

Steve, an 11th grader at Buffalo Traditional School, is one of the growing number of area students who stopped buying school lunches this fall and have started bringing their own. The brown bag is becoming a more familiar sight in local school lunchrooms as prices have doubled and new guidelines have made it harder for families to qualify for free or reduced-price school

A he reasons given for switching to a homemade lunch vary. Some. parents decided $1 a day for a school lunch was too hard to swallow. Many Buffalo school students said they bring their own lunches, even though they qualify for free meals, because they simply can't stomach the school cuisine. The Buffalo school district has doubled the full price of a school lunch to $1 and hiked the cost of a reduced-price lunch from 10 cents to 40 cents. Most suburban districts are now charging between 70 and 85 cents for a full-price meal and collecting 40 cents from those students who qualify for the reduced rate. The increases are necessary, school officials, say, because federal budget cuts have reduced the amount of reimbursement a district receives for each lunch served.

In addition, the federal government has tightened the eligibility requirements for the school lunch program and required families for the first time to include their Social Security numbers on the school lunch application forms.

Federal officials have calculated nationwide average cost of a fullprice lunch to increase to 75 cents. \ Officials in the federal Food and Nutrition Service estimate that 1.3 million children will stop buying school meals as a result of the price

Edgar E. DeGasper, food service director for the Buffalo schools, said he expects the district will serve 4,000 to 5,000 fewer lunches each day as a result of the stricter income guidelines and increased prices. That would be a reduction of about 15 percent from the approximately 32,000 lunches served each day last year.

DeGasper said he does not know

In a seven weeks to complete the review number of Buffalo schools, students are still receiving free lunches based on last year's eligibility requirements.

"We're reviewing them as quickly as we can," DeGasper said.

Assistant Food Service Supervisor Angelo Pefanis said that as of Oct. 21 four Buffalo schools hadn't had their applications reviewed. Superintendent Eugene T. Reville said

"They have a brand new set of guidelines this year," he said, adding that the application forms are more complicated this year.

She 'Grades' Kids' Lunches

Ever since she taught nutrition in a pre-kindergarten program in Niagara Falls, Letitia Andres has been aware of the effect healthful snacks and lunches have on children's performances in school. The program ended eight years ago for lack of funding. But its influence is still very much alive at the Henry Kalfas School (formerly Beech Avenue School) in Niagara Falls, where she teaches first "We send a note to parents at the beginning of each school year asking them to send in healthful foods for lunches and morning and afternoon snacks," she said. And the first graders themselves are learning from their lessons and classroom games what constitutes nutritious meals.

"Usually, after I announce that it's 'snack time,' the children will check out each others' snacks. If somebody brings in something very sweet or some junk foods, the other kids will make comments. Some will say 'Oh, he has potato chips!' and everyone knows that's not a bealthy snack

Continued Mrs. Andres: "We stress that in the morning they should have only nutritious snacks They bring in vegetables like carrots or celery, or some cheese Sometimes the parents fill the celery with cottage cheese or peanut butter. We are more relaxed about the afternoon snacks."

From time to time, she checks personally on the lunches the children bring. 'The other day, an aide called me to tell me that one child didn't bring in a good lunch. It was a piece of tye bread with a very thin layer of peanut butter and nothing else. Nothing to drink.

"I asked her (the child) if that was really all she had. "That's all we had to eat at home," " the child answered

The most popular school lunch food, according to Mrs. Andres, is the peanut butter and jelly sand-

What comprises a nutritious lunch? I asked Suzanne Grossman, nutrition service specialist with the Erie County Health Department.

"As far as I am concerned, geanut butter with a little bit of jelly on whole grain bread would be a nutritious lunch along with fresh fruit and milk as the beverage," she said. She also suggested skim milk cheese with whole grain unsalted crackers as a good lunch idea for children, along with fruit. More ideas are apparently needed for children's lunches since the same thing day after day is bound to become boring.

Mrs. Andres gave these examples of good brown bag lunches for children "Once in a while, a child will come in with a fruit salad in a container. Some bring in granola bars, or hard-boiled eggs. In the winter there might be a parent who will put hot socp in a thermos."

She sighed: "That's great. But not many do it. I would like to see more hot soup made with meat, potatoes and vegetables."

Mrs. Andres said she involves her pupils in nutrition games.

"I have found that the higher the social and economic level, the more children are tuned in to good nutri-

"Children hate cold cuts," Mrs. Andres said. "They hate sandwiches filled with bologna and salami. A kid who comes in with roast beef sandwich will trade it for a peanut butter and jelly if he can."

Are there alternatives besides peanut butter for children who don't want cold cut sandwiches?

For Gaeta Jain, a ninth grader at Williamsville South who inherited a vegetarian diet from her Indian family, a peanut butter and jelly sandwich is also a favorite lunch

"I sometimes take an apple and some crackers," she said. "My mom makes cucumber salad sandwiches and I buy milk at school."

Her cousin, Rakesh Jain, also a vegetarian who is in his fourth year at the University of Buffalo Medical School, acknowledged, "It can be hard to find something good to pack for funch if you don't want meat.

"But," he added. "there is a lot more to food than just meat."

His mother, who has been packing vegetarian lunches for years for

Chicken Subs for Veal In Saltimbocca Dish

One of the pleasures of cooking in my own or anyone else's kitchen is experimenting. Altering a traditional recipe, for example, either by changing the principal ingredient or by substituting flavors — tarragon for rosemary, basil for parsley and so on. I do this at times with classic French recipes and, once in a while, 1 borrow" an international dish for my experiments.

As I have said often enough, breast of chicken is one of the finest substitutes for veal. As much as I admire veal (I consider it perhaps the finest of meats), it is at times prohibitively expensive, and there are lew items at the butcher's counter less costly or more tasty than chicken.

Recently I wound up with several leftover slices of freshly bought prosciutto. I decided that saltimboccaalla Romana, a dish that I have enjoyed on many occasions, would be a nice use for the prosciutto.

Traditionally, of course, this is made with scaloppine of yeal. I decided to use skinless, boneless chicken breast instead, and the result, or so my guests told me, was altogether admirable. It is a simple and certainly a quick enough dish to prepare.

After trimming the breast halves to remove all membrane, fat and fiber, place them, one at a time, between sheets of plastic wrap. Pound them with a flat mallet until they are quite thin, but taking care not to make holes in the flesh.

The pounding hastens the cooking time, among other things. The Dieces are then coated lightly with flour and cooked quickly in butter and oil, and Marsala wine is added and cooked briefly.

The best accompaniment for saltimbocca is cooked escarole or spinach, another altogether easy dish to prepare. Rinse the leaves and cook them in boiling water until tender. Squeeze the leaves to extract most of the liquid and cook for a second or two in olive oil with chopped or sliced garlic.

DEAR ABBY: Please give more reacting, or possibly that we were know that ignoring child molestapublicity to a problem that has been 'in the closet" much too long. It concerns incest and child molestation. When this catastrophic crime hit t my family of highly respectable, educated people, I handled it all wrong. In our case, it was a grandfather. Half the family was outraged. The other half thought the first half was over-mistaken about the intentions of a loving old grandfather.

Out of family loyalty, we did not prosecute. We were wrong. Consequently, nothing has been done to get the offender the help he needs.

Abby, this crime must be stopped. I am certain there is much more of it going on than most people realize. The child must be the first concern. Then treatment (forced, if need be) for the sick offender. Please let your readers

DEAR WITHHOLD: Child molestation and particularly incest already have one foot out of the closet. There is an organization that has proven to be very helpful.

"Parents United and Daughters and Sons United" chapters have sprung up in many parts of the country. This self-help group is affiliated with a professional treatment program and works closely with the courts. While protection of the child is always given top priority, support is provided for families who want to work out their problems and stay together, and even for those who don't!

The nationwide average for free lunch recipients is only 38 percent, according to the National School Boards Assn.

The suburban districts, where more students and their parents are faced with paying the full price for the school lunch, have reported an even sharper increase in the number of brown bags and lunchboxes. Barbara Close, food'service director for the Orchard Park Schools said that participation in the school lunch program has dropped by 33.5 percent this fall.

The stricter income levels have meant "we've had quite a number of families who no longer qualify," Mrs. Close said. There has been a 30 percent reduction in the number of free lunches served in Orchard Park and a 46.8 percent reduction inthe number of reduced-price lunches, she said.

She thinks the 15 cent increase in the cost of a lunch, combined-with the "bad press" school lunches received last summer, caused students to switch to brown bag lunches. The bad press she was referring to came this summer after Reagan administration officials said they were considering changing school lunch regulations in order to permit smaller portions and allow schools to count ketchup and other condiments toward the vegetable allowance. Those proposals were criticized and subsequently abandoned by Reagan officials.

But even after those proposals were dropped, the impression remained in the minds of parents and children that school lunches would rate, said Steve's mother, Kathleen be stingy and unappetizing this Gray. But, even if it did, Steve had year, Mrs. Close said.

tion," she said. "It wasn't a 'have to buy a reduced-price lunch this to' situation, it was a 'can if you - year, the cost to the Gray family chard Park depends on buyers to support its school lunch program. On Nov. 2, the district will launch a new "build your own lunch" plan to attract more student customers. Mrs. Close said. Students every day will have a choice of pizza, hamburger, hot dogs, soup and sandwich, if they don't wish to select the entree being served that day. Mrs. Close is hoping that be giving students a choice of what they want to eat, they will want to buy the lunch. Under the new plan, "they can have pizza every day - heaven help them if they do - but they can have it," she said.

Deated in the cafeteria of the Buffalo Traditional School during a recent lunch period, Steve Gray said he would rather eat the two peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, cookies, doughnuts, juice and fruit he had brought from home than the school lunch being offered for $1. On that particular day, $1 would have bought Steve a hot meal of spaghetti with meat sauce, a chunk of bread, a small salad, milk and a

Last year, Steve qualified for reduced-price meals and was able to eat the lunch the entire year for $14. The district's charge for reducedprice meals was 10 cents per meal, but rather "than go through the trouble of collecting all those little dimes each day," the district let parents pay for the entire year at once, DeGasper said.

This year, the family "probably doesn't" qualify for the reduced decided he would rather eat a home-"That got so blown out of propor- made lunch. If Steve had continued would have jumped from $14 for the

Like most suburban districts, Or- year to 40 cents per day, or $72 during a normal school year. If Steve purchased the lunch at the full price of $1, his meals would cost $180.

> Mrs. Gray said she doesn't mind the $1 price tag as much as the fact that Steve often did not eat the school lunch when he was buying it.

"If it was something he didn't like, he would end up eating just the dessert and the milk," Mrs. Gray said. Steve's brother Michael, 13, a student at the Buffalo Academy for, the Visual and Performing Arts, also requests a homemade lunch instead of money for the school meal.

Mrs. Gray estimated that she can pack a lunch for 30 or 40 cents.

The school lunch "is definitely not worth $1," Steve says. "A dollar is too much to pay every day."

Jacqueline Massey wouldn't mind paying a $1 a day for her daughter's lunch, if she could be sure $1 worth of food would be eaten. Richelle Massey, 14, a ninth grader at Buffalo Traditional School, said, "I bag my lunch because my lunches taste better than the stuff you can buy."

Mrs. Massey said she can make sure Richelle is eating a good lunch by making her a bag lunch.

"I ask her what she wants for lunch, and this way I know she will eat it," Mrs. Massey said. "When she bought the lunch, some days she would come home and tell me she didn't like it, or that she only ate part of it. Rather than just throw money away, I'd rather make her something I know she will like."

Linda Burton, a home economist for the Chautauqua County Cooperative Extension Service, said parents can save money by packing a lunch if they plan carefully and use leftovers well. This year she has had a lot of requests from community groups for talks on how to pack a nutritious and low cost lunch, "so obviously parents are doing a lot of this," she said.

Mrs. Close of the Orchard Park food program said although parents and-children are complaining about the high price of school lunches. more students are spending the cost of a lunch for snacks.

"The child that is bringing the bag lunch is now also bringing a dollar for snacks."

So Mrs. Close and other food service directors feel their student's taste, not the economy, is the main reason behind the large number of brown bags. Most of the Buffalo brown baggers interviewed echoed the sentiments of Follow Through student Arvis Allen, 12, who packs a lunch even though he is eligible for a free lunch.

"That stuff's nasty," is how Arvis described the pre-packaged lunch served at his school. He said he makes his own lunch and takes the school's offering "only when I run out of food at home.'

I he pre-packaged lunches that Arvis calls "nasty" are supplied to the district by Service Systems Co., which prepares the lunches and delivers them to the schools. The prepackaged lunches came under criticism last week when a Buffalo principal charged that he had been ordered to serve his pupils five-dayold tuna fish sandwiches. That charge arose from the Buffalo food service department's policy of storing leftover pre-packaged lunches and serving them the next day. When the school in question, School 3, had leftover tuna fish sandwiches over the Columbus Day weekend, the principal was told those sandwiches had to be served when students returned to school four days later. The flap that arose over the five-day-old sandwiches caused Superintendent Reville to announce a new policy that tuna or

As American as High Taxes and Molasses

By Betty Rivera THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

In Virginia during the early 1800s the height of a bride's wedding cake was often dependent upon her popu-

It was customary at Virginian weddings for the guests to arrive with thin layers of molasses cake, These stack cakes, as they were called, were piled one upon the other and quickly provided visual evidence of the number of friends a bride had. As this practice was embarrassing for a bride whose stack of molasses cakes did not fall in the "high rise" category, the custom of using a footed cake plate to furnish added height was adopted.

Molasses for stack cakes and numerous other culinary offerings has been an integral part of American cooking for centuries. During colonial days, John Adams called it "an essential ingredient in American independence" because the British-Parliament in 1733 aroused the ire of American colonists by unfairly taxing molasses bought by Americans from any_country other than England.

And it is interesting to realize that in Newbury, Vt., a minister once postponed the celebrating of Thanksgiving Day because there was no molasses in town to sweeten oumokin pie.

pumpkin pies is only one of the many innovative ways, however, in which Americans throughout the centuries have used this culinary favorite. New Englanders used it to add a different flavor to everything from baked beans to pudding; and Southern ladies properly served their guests crisp cookies and golden gingerbread flavored with mo-

Pears Are Versatile, Contain Nutrients

resh pears can be purchased several days ahead of time and ripened at home. Pears are picked while still green but mature, which assures proper ripening. Buy pears that are big and plump, and ripen them at room temperature. Pears ripen from the inside out, which means they should not be held until soft on the outside. At that stage, the inside may be too soft and tasteless to eat. Pears are ready to eat when still

Keep them in a loosely closed paper or plastic bag for a few days until they turn a ripe golden yellow and yield slightly to gentle palm pressure.

Once ripened, store in a cold and humid place and eat as soon as possible. Fresh pears are good stewed, baked, fried, pickled, glazed and used in jams, jellies and preserves.

Pears contain a good spectrum of nutrients, including B vitamins and vitamin C. One medium-sized pear contains only about 100 calories.

PEAR CHUTNEY

- shout 5 nounds) sliced firm near 1/2 cup finely chopped fresh green pepper
- 11/4 cups seedless raisins 4 cups sugar
- 1 cup chopped crystallized giner
- 3 cups cider vinegar 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon whole alispice 1/4 teaspoon whole cloves
- 3 cinnamon sticks

Place ingredients up to and including the salt in a saucepan. Tie all spice and cloves in a cloth bag and add along with cinnamon. Cook slowly until pears are tender and mixture is thick, about one hour. Remove spices. Ladle into hot sterilized jars. Seal at once. Makes eight half-pint jars.

FRESH GRAPE AND PEAR CHUTNEY

- 4 pounds (about 9 large) firm pears 1/2 cup chopped fresh green pepper
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 3¼ cap sugar 21/4 cups cider vinegar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt 2 teaspoons pickling spice
- 3 cups seedless grapes, cut in half

Wash, pare, core and dice pears. (There should be about 2 quarts.) Mix with ingredients through the salt in a six-quart saucepan. Wrap pickling spice in a cheesecloth bag and add. When they celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary today, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wojtczak will finally cut up and serve the top layer of the wedding cake - the fruitcake layer - that they saved on their wedding day thinking that they would use it a year later.

The Darien Center couple were married Oct. 27, 1956 at Queen of Peace Church. Ever since then, Mrs. Wojtczak has been nurturing the wedding cake in her freezer but she says she could not bring herself to destroy it by eating it. "I looked at it, and just left it there. I had it wrapped in plastic and seven layers of aluminum foll," she explained. "I checked it every year to see if it was okay. It held up very well. Once in a while I would take a nibble and taste it. It's fine. It amazed me. Even the frosting held up."

The wedding cake was baked by the Bluebird Bakery which is still making wedding cakes today on West Ave-

Nantucket Carrot Cake Sweet Enough for Wedding

By Cecily Brownstone ASSOCIATED PRESS FOOD EDITOR

When a young friend told me that for her wedding she had a tiered and frosted carrot cake, I almost fell off my kitchen stool. Yes, I had encountered a Genoise (the French butter sponge) and a chocolate. torte (the Viennese cake-style dessert) used for wedding cakes. But I had no inkling that a vegetable concoction might some day rival the fruited or white cakes traditional for weddings.

So be it. Recently I heard that visitors to Nantucket were flocking to a harborside cafe to enjoy the carrot cake served there. I hied myself to that Massachusetts island to ferret out the recipe.

Yes, I was lucky. Through a friend, I met the generous young baker of the cake who gave me her formula. Here it is, reduced in my est kitchen to a family-size propor-special flavor, moist texture and the fact that it slices beautifully. Its bottom surface looks slightly caramelized; right side up, it has a sugar-top crust. Most of my tasters sang the frosted cake's praises. But for several of them, it was too sweet. My own reaction? Truly worth baking when you know a sweet dessert will be appreciated by your guests.

> NANTUCKET CARROT CAKE

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 cup sugar 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspeen baking seda
- 1/2 teaspeon salt
- I teaspoon ground cinnamen
- 2 large eggs
- % cup oll 1 teaspoon vanilla 11/2 cups tightly packed
- thinly shredded pared 1 cup chopped pecans

Frosting, recipe follows.

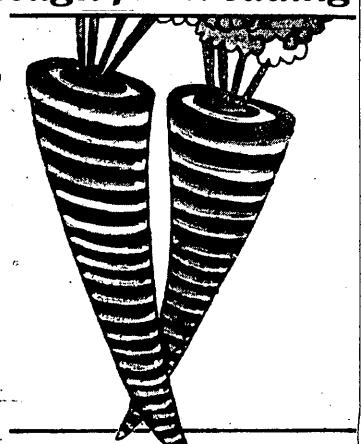

(the size of tiny peas)

(about 81/2 by 41/2 by 21/2 inches) with wax paper; grease paper and sides of pan. On wax paper or in a bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon. In a medium bowl, with a wooden spoon, beat the eggs enough to blend yolks and whites; add oil and vanilla and beat to blend; add the flour mixture; stir until smooth; stir in the carrots and 1/2 cup of the pecans. Turn into the prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean - 1 hour. Let stand on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out on a wire rack; with another rack turn right side up; let cool completely. Cover top and sides with the frosting; sprinkle with the remaining pecans.

Line the bottom of a loaf pan

Note: One-half pound carrots minus green tops and pared will, after shredding thinly, give the amount called for.

Frosting: Beat until blended ¼ cup butter, 4 ounces cream cheese 1 teaspoon vanilla. Gradually beat in 1% cups confectioners' sugar or enough to make a good spreading consistency.

Scots Take a Long Road

By Tom Joyce

L'he voice on the other end of the telephone line belonged to Dan McCafferty of the Scottish rock and . thinks about those early days, but roll band Nazareth. That much was clear. We were talking prior to the Nazareth concert at Shea's Buffalo tomorrow night.

But what he was saying was all fairly puzzling at first. McCafferty still speaks with a beautiful Scottish accent and the only words I could be sure he was saying were "you

Fortunately, the rhythm of his speech began to make his meaning clear. That was a real break, since there are so few Scottish translators around.

McCafferty was speaking about Nazareth's popularity. "I think we've been able to survive for so long (over a decade) because we sell-a lot of albums and we put on a good show."

Nazareth is probably best-known around here for their hit single, "Love Hurts." Although they have not had too many other Top 40 successes, McCafferty says "there are a lot more people into our music than the media would have you believe.'

I he original members of Nazareth have been rock-and-rollers since the early '60s. Being Scottish did not belo them during the British explosion. Their record company biography says that guitarist Manny Charlton walked from Edinburgh to London to protest the treatment of Scottish bands by London papers. McCafferty says that he often he is not sure what he can do with them artistically. "You have to watch that what you're doing doesn't become too introspective." He gets many of the ideas he uses for writing songs from the band's constant traveling. "We travel so much. You spend so much time going to different places that you're like a human train. Coming from Scotland, even the normal things people do here in America look different."

McCafferty continued, "It's like when we're home and people ask us 'well, what's America like?' And we always ask them 'which parts?' Detroit is nothing like New York and New York is different than Tex-

This difference from place to place has also made a practical difference in Nazareth's career. They enjoy excellent record sales in the strangest places, like Norway where "Love Hurts" is the best-selling single of all time. McCafferty finds the audiences in the United States very hard to figure. When Nazareth was the opening act for Z Z Top, they played to huge, stadium-size crowds in Texas.

But then going on to New York City,

the Z Z Top tour pulled only 600.

On "The Fool Circle," Nazareth recorded some strange songs about corruption and power in politics as well as the possibility of a nuclear war. One of the lyrics goes "Doctor Strangelove, we're all in your movie

now. McCafferty finds the young audiences picking right up on the political themes. "Look, we're not saying anything that people aren't thinking. After all, if a 'B' actor can be president, a Scottish rock-and-roll band has the right to speak out."

Nazareth has survived long enough in the record business to see it change. McCafferty says "when Nazareth was first formed back in 1969, the Beatles were still recording. There was a lot of music happening.

"The record companies began to see that these (musicians) are not just a bunch of dummies. The bands, per se, were given a lot of freedom." But gradually things changed.

The record companies began to demand (and get) more control over the product.

McCafferty voices a familiar complaint: "It's all so planned and mass-produced." The music, though, keeps getting.

better. McCafferty says "there's still a lot of energy in the music. especially on all the underground labels. There are all these younger groups that are coming out with great stuff."

Cosell's Ego Prevails In Series

Cosell, ABC Sports would be a sorry shadow of its present self, tell that person about Sunday's first-time coverage of the New York City Marathon. And then point out Humble Howard's ego trip during the current World Series.

While Cosell rested his lungs (and our ears), in Los Angeles, the 21/4hour coverage of Alberto Salarar and Allison Roe's record-shattering 26-mile trek through the five boroughs of New York wasn't at all the boring venture some had predicted. Jim McKay, Marty Liquori and Diana Nyad kept their commentary crisp and to the point while ABC's close-up view of the leaders but spectacular shots of old New York.

On the negative side, ABC was too often victimized by a shaky camera aboard a vehicle over the last few miles and Jim Lampley didn't want to give an ill-feeling Salazar time to recover before interviewing him." But even the latter proved a plus by revealing a contrast when Ms. Roe crossed the line not even breathing hard after galloping nearly 21/4

Cosell, through the Dodger-Yankee Series which resumes tonight (Ch. 7, 8:00), has come across as not only an incredible Yankee fan, an obnoxious second-guesser who's out of his element in baseball, but once again one who attempts to show off not only his contacts but his vocabulary and winds up murdering the king's English.

In game one, Keith Jackson pointed out that James Cagney would throw out the first ball the next night, ending a dispute between the Yankees and baseball commissioner Bewie Kuhn. Jackson had barely uttered the last syllable when Cosell chimed in: "I knew that earlier, Keith, but refrained from saying so in deference to the commissioner." Who cares whether Cosell knew it earlier — besides Cosell? In subsequent nights and days, Cosell told us of his affection for late Yankee catcher Thurman Munson ("I loved that man and I'm not ashamed to say it") and how it's "impossible" to venture into the Yankee Stadium bullpen area and 'not be overwhelmed" by those names on the monuments ("There's leave anyone out"). In game three, when Cosell referred to a key high chopper into left field as "blind luck," Jim Palmer straightened him out by noting Yankee third baseman Aurelio Rodrigues was playing in tight. Bobby Brown had hardly completed a centerfield blunder in game four when 'The Mouth'' started playing I Told You So, recalling an earlier comment to make himself look good. But the absolute best came Sunday when Cosell actually asked Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, "Are you going to re-architecture this team?'

Jacob Ruppert — we don't want to

After a question like that, it's time for a reminder that just as Jack Buck does a splendid job as Cosell's CBS radio alternative for 'Monday Night Football." Vin Scully is even sharper if you wish to give ABC's World Series coverage the 'sound-off' treatment and turn on WECK (1230). And Howard, on Halloween week, this boo's for you: B0000000!!!

Mike Denglas, whose show airs daily at 1 on Ch. 29, says he scrapped the talk format after 20 years for one basic reason: "Whether it's 'AM Minneapolis' or 'AM Buffalo, there are 466 talk shows in this country. They all have a host and co-host, they're doing us and they're

THE NEXT TIME somebody ex- doing it live. That's what scared me. hales the belief that without Howard By the time we got to the same subjects, they were terribly watered down.

> "Now I'm the only one doing a regular variety show," Douglas told this column. "We talk, but we do it standing up. We have a set in the round, five co-hosts a week, we do seven-minute segments and the performers love it." Douglas admitted he's receiving "negative reaction from some agents of big stars" (who want brief shots and plugola), but said he's not worried. "I'm praying for a switch to prime-time in markets where an independent carries. us." he said.

That's Buffalo, but a Ch. 29 20-plus cameras offered not only a spokesman said no such change is planned. "That's what happened with Tonl Tennille and everybody dropped out when it didn't work, the spokesman said.

> CBS' GENERALLY excellent 'Body Human" specials offer an hour of frank discussions for teenage girls this afternoon (Ch. 4, 4:30), a rebroadcast of "Facts for Girls" with Marlo Thomas followed by a fresh segment, "Becoming a Woman," featuring Cicely Tyson talking to two teens about sexual responsibility — choices and consequences.

While most of the second effort is a laudable use of TV for teens, it still is no substitute for sensitive discussions within the family. Indeed, Cicely's half-hour, though spontaneous, seems sugar-coated. It does, however, address abortion, virginity, physical and emotional feelings. Had I been the producer, though, I would have made this effort without the song, "Tonight You're Mine -Completely."

NBC, WITH EIGHT premieres set tomorrow and Thursday nights, has pushed back "Bret Maverick" to Dec. 1 due to James Garner's fall off a mechanical horse and "The Powers of Matthew Star" to Jan. 3 due to the death of supervising producer

Fans who tune in "Love. Sidney" tomorrow (Ch. 2, 9:30 p.m.) will find the little girl (Kaleena Kiff) back in Sidney Shorr's apartment with her mother now divorced. You'll recall the well-done Oct. 5 pilot ended with the mother and child leaving Sidney alone in Manhattan for family bliss in Los Angeles. But marriage went poof along with references to Sidney's homosexuality. Teny Randali still stars, but Swoosle Kurtz has replaced Lorna Patterson, who's featured in "Private Benjamin."

$7 Million Slotted For Public TV, Radio

NEW YORK (AP) - The National Endowment for the Arts has announced 63 grants totaling $7 million to public television and radio, more money for more programs than ever before in the federal agency's 16-year history.

The grants were expected to shake an additional $24 million from private donors. They went to new programs and also continued support of several existing ones, including "Dance in America," "Live from the Met," "Non-Fiction Television," "Evening at Symphony," and "Live From Lincoln Center."

Livingston L. Biddle Jr., chairman of the endowment, said at a news conference at Lincoln Center that each program "serves that fundamental purpose, enriching the human spirit."

He said word of the $7 million grant already had spurred contributions from such foundations and corporations as Exxon Corp., Rockefeller Foundation, TRW Corp. and Polaroid Corp.

"We are the catalyst for ... this kind of partnership with great organizations in this country that are not governmental," Biddle said. He said the programs would "serve millions of viewers and listeners through the public broadcasting networks."

"The audience for arts programming has grown impressively since the initiation of the Programming in the Arts venture here at the endowment." he said. "It is our intention to make, the best the arts can provide available to all Americans.

The new support went to television series in opera and musical theater, architecture and design, drama and "American Masters," which will "present documentary portraits by outstanding U.S. filmmakers of the country's greatest contemporary artists in all fields."

The National Endowment for the Arts, an independent agency funded by Congress, was created in 1965 to encourage and assist the nation's cultural progress. It awards fellowships to individual artists and makes matching grants to non-profit, tax-exempt organizations.

What followed was, literally, a battle of the sexes. The women musicians marched out of rehearsal and lodged a formal complaint. Maestro, as it turned out, made a habit of weaving about as wildly as his baton. So did other men in the orchestra, his "bottle-sharers," harrumphed the women.

For many a Soviet woman, the greatest irritant in daily life is a Soviet man.

But in few instances is the irritant so neatly dealt with as was the Maestros are easier to replace than husbands. Life, with apologies to Shakespeare, is not an orchestra stage. In the real world, particularly the Soviet woman's world, problems are not so nicely isolated.

One young Moscow woman complains: "The problems of my marriage are wrapped up with other burdens: work, shopping, apartment space, money ... Suddenly deciding to be single isn't a magic solution either."

This is all the more true if a woman wants to remarry. The Stalinist purges and forced collectivization of farms, plus a savage world war, took their toll. "The chances of remarrying are relatively slim," said a soviet newspaper recently, "given the shortage of eligible bachelors.'

But, said the same newspaper, a growing number of Soviet women

This figure did husband is spoiled . . . My husband not include consumption of home-dismuddled maestro of Nikolayev. He never helps with the housework.

By no means all Soviet men are spoiled. But the typical young boy does seem more coddled here than in many other countries.

Nomen ( One woman recently wrote to the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossia (Soviet Russia ) decrying the "Infantilism of modern men." The letter, published under the title, "What Will Become of Mama's Babies?" argued that young girls did more work than boys at home and that the boys, unsurprisingly, became "apathetic dependents" later in

> Not all Soviet men shun shopping, cleaning or other housework. But comments from Soviet women and reports in the Soviet press suggest that most want little or no part of it.

"Housework" has peculiarly Soviet connotations for Soviet women. A large number of Soviet women work. This is due, at least in part, to a shortage of male labor in some areas of the economy. But when offices close and factory whistles blow, the married woman's work is often just beginning.

She must shop, if she hasn't done so early in the morning or during an years ago held that Soviet women tilled samagon, a phenomenon im- elastic lunch hour. Even in this capital city, the supply of many products tends to be irregular. That often means going from one store to another, waiting in line at each and sparring with sometimes abrupt shopkeepers. The problem comes up in Soviet press reports often: it was even alluded to by President Leonid Brezhnev in a major address last February.

Then she goes home - often to a cramped apartment. She cooks dinner. Convenience foods are not widely available here.

And she cleans. Ironically, if her family has been "lucky" enough to have snagged one of the new apartments being feverishly built by the state in Moscow and other cities, she will do so without the help of the once ever-present "babushki," or grandmothers, who pitch in by long Soviet tradition.

Cleaning, too, has a different sense here than in many Western countries. Relatively few women have dishwashers, much less electric waxers or floor polishers.

A study published here a few were spending up to six hours a day -milles in trouble.

said only 3 percent of Leningrad husbands helped their wives with the shopping.

A more recent newspaper report suggested that women down on the farm were particularly hard pressed. "Rural men rarely help their wives," said the report, in the youth newspaper Yunost. Yet rural women were often responsible not only for ordinary housework but also for tilling small plots.

None of these problems is a secret to Soviet authorities. Each finds its way into official news media.

Mix Loving Care, Best Ingredients For Savory Soup

By Marjorie R. Tis THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR NEWS SERVICE

A steaming, hearty bowlful of homemade soup, freshly baked popovers or crusty warm bread in a basket to the side - what could be better on a chilly fall day? Only perhaps, the enjoyment of preparing

There's a pleasant satisfaction to tending the soup pot, swirling a wooden spoon through the contents, and catching warm, savory drafts as the ingredients simmer toward their final transformation.

Then comes that first taste-test. adjusting the seasonings to just right - a little freshly ground pepper, a squeeze more of lemon juice, or some sweet marjoram.

Finally, the warmed tureen is filled and the hot soup Indled into bowls. No wonder Fannie Merritt Farmer instructed students in 1896: "It is the duty of every housekeeper to learn the art of soup-making" ("The Boston Cooking School Cookbook," Original 1896 edition).

A ake as much care in preparing soup as you would any other dish. For the best flavor, only top-quality ingredients should be used. Tired. overcooked vegetables won't produce an interesting taste no matter what the seasoning.

Broth, or stock, a liquid base for many soups, can be made easily, but it requires long simmering. If you haven't the time for this, a good canned broth can be substituted.

However as with all canned soups, it can be bland and is enlivened by simmering some chopped carrot, onion, celery, and a bay leaf in it for a few minutes before use.

Use seasoning carefully - it should enhance, not dominate, the basic flavor. When experimenting with a new taste, add just a little at first until you're familiar with its potency and compatibility with the dish.

Fresh herbs are preferred over dried - they're brighter and zestier. Dried herbs are more concentrated in flavor than fresh, however, so bear this in mind.

Salt should only be added at the end of the cooking time. Since the liquid condenses, the salt that was just right to start could be too much in the finished product.

Compare different recipes for the same kind of soup, and come up with your own version. In the cream of tomato soup recipe that follows (which ended my search for tomato soup with character), I substituted a couple of fresh basil leaves for the garlic and it worked well. Also, I used less broth to make a thicker consistency.

Garnishes complete the perfect soup, and there's a wide variety to choose from. Possibilities include fresh herbs, chopped eggs, grated cheese, blanched vegetables such as tiny broccoli florets or carrots, dollops of whipped or sour cream, and small dumplines. Croutons are a favorite, and they're simple to make at home, but be sure to use a sturdy brezd.

Time-Life Books volume on "Soupe," part of The Good Cook series, is a thorough, clear text for learning basic and complex techniques of soupmaking. It includes a collection of recipes reprinted from a wide range of cookbooks. Here is a recipe from Louis Diat's "French Cooking for Americans."

- 6 medium-sized ripe tomatoes, roughly chopped
- cup canned tomatoes
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 onlon, chopped
- 1 carrot, chopped tablespoons flour
- 1 quart chicken stock or water
- 1 small clove of garlic 2 leeks, thinly sliced,
- optional
- 4 white peppercorns
- 1 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon sugar

1 cup light cream

chicken carcass, optionai

Melt butter in a deep saucepan, add onion and carrot, and cool slowly until golden brown. Add flour and mix.

Add stock or water, the garlic, leeks, white peppercorns, salt, sugar, tomatoes, and chicken carcass (if using). Cover and cook over low heat for 1 to 11/2 hours, skimming as needed. Remove chicken carcass and rub soup through a fine strainer. Combine cream with strained soup and correct seasoning. If soup is too thick, add a little more cream or stock to obtain desired consistency. Serve with croutons or rice. Serves 4 to 6. The following recipe is from Antonin Careme's "L'Art de La Cuisine Francaise au Dix-Neuvieme Siecle."

1 quart consomme

Blanch cauliflower in boiling water for about 5 minutes, then plunge into cold water and drain. Put into a pan with a little con-somme and parsley, and simmer gently bring soup just to boiling point. Sieve through medium blade of food mill; a blender will make puree too smooth. Season.

Return soup to heat to simmer for a further hour; again, keep mixture barely at simmering point. Check from time to time and give soup a stir. Add more water if mixture becomes too thick.

Serve with croutons. Serves 3 or

- 4 tablespoons butter 14 to 14-cap of

Remove crusts from bread and cut slices into cubes. Combine butfer and ¼ cup oil in large skillet. Melt butter over medium heat and, as soon as butter and oil mixture is hot, add bread cubes and increase heat to high.

Turn cubes frequently with a broad metal spatula so that they brown evenly on all sides, and add more oil as necessary to keep cubes from burning. Before serving, drain croctons on paper towels.

Onlons are the base of this pureed soup - one of many varieties of this cold weather staple.

Mike-Mayer has faced a lot of pressure situations over the past three years and has delivered some vital field goals — to beat New England in overtime in 1979 and Los Angeles in a sudden death situation last year and to send this season's Cincinnati game into overtime.

Because the kick was successful, there is a tendency to overlook the other elements of the play — the protection, the snap and the hold all of which also had to be perfect. A collapse in any of those three areas would have been every bit as disastrous as a missed placement.

Another special teams play which may be overlooked was Buster Barnett's block of a Denver field goal

The reader whose question is selected will receive a pair of tickets to the Bills' next home game. Readers should mail questions to: Ask Chuck Knox, c/o The Sports Editor, 785 Main St., Buffalo, N.Y.

This week's question:

Mr. Knox: After a safety is scored, the team has the option to punt or kick off from its own 28-yard line to the team which scored the safety. Most teams seem to punt. Which option would you take and why?

Mr. F. Wistrowski Checktowaga

While the "free kick" option following a safety does give a team an opportunity to put the ball in play with either a punt, a place kick or a drop kick, we cannot recall ever seeing anyone use either of the last two choices. We use a punt in this situation because it is possible for the punter to get the ball up higher in the air and, therefore, give the coverage team more of a chance to 20s and had been drinking, he get downfield. get downfield.

Buffalo yielded only 161 yards, its second lowest this year. Denver could generate just 64 yards rushing, the smallest total allowed in the eight games. The Broncos had only 10 first downs and just two in the second half.

"When you have ballcarriers getting hit by five or six guys every time they got to the line of scrimmage, well, that can get to you," said Smerlas.

"We continually stopped them on first down," added defensive end Ben Williams. "That just makes everything easier for us.

Five times the Broncos were stopped for two yards or less on first down during their 14 possessions. Three other times passes mis-fired. Never was the dominance better illustrated then when Denver took over with 5:17 to play and two straight running plays netted zero yards.

"That was the key," said Williams. "Then we knew they had to come back with the pass and we had a real fine rush.

Steinbrenner's Fighting For Yanks — Literally

NEW YORK (AP) - George Steinbrenner, whose New York Yankees had fallen behind Los Angeles 3-2 in the World Series a few hours earlier, says he got into a fight Sunday night with two men who called his team chokers and New York fans ani-

The two men confronted Steinbrenner in an elevator at the Los Angeles hotel where the Yankees were staying a few hours after Sunday's game, and punches were thrown and Steinbrenner was struck by a beer bottle, according to the principal owner of the American League champions.

Steinbrenner said he suffered a possible fracture of the left hand, a cut on a right knuckle, a swollen upper lip and a bump on on the head.

The club owner and his Yankees arrived at Newark Airport at about 6 p.m., EST, yesterday and immediately left by buses, apparently for Yankee Stadium. Steinbrenner, his left hand in a cast, made no comment to waiting newsmen, but he had told reporters on the plane that the injured hand would be X-rayed

Yanks Better Find a Hero

By Erik Brady COURSER-EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER

NEW YORK - It's hero time. The New York Yankees trail the Los Angeles Dodgers three games to two and must win Game Six of the World Series tonight if they are to force a seventh game tomorrow night. And, if they are to do it, they are going to need some heroes. One Yankee must now come to the fore and make the plays which the Yankees haven't been making since

More World Series stories on Page C-13.

Games One and Two. The Yankees have a number of players who could do this. Here are five candidates from among the team's best known veterans.

Candidate No. 1 is Reggie Jackson. Mr. October doesn't have many days left in his favorite month. And, after playing for teams in five World Series, he's in danger of being on his each team, in woeful batting slumps. One is Winfield, the $23 million dollar man who doesn't like the word slump. "Please," he said "don't use the word 'slump." It's just 'a period of adjustment.' Whatever you want to call it, Winfield's opposite number in left field for the Dodgers, Dusty Baker, is also going through it. Winfield is 1 for 18 and Baker 2 for 19 in Series play - and Baker, at .320 was the Dodgers leading hitter during the

"There haven't been many hits

If so, the Yanks' Series hero would have to come from somewhere other than left field. Which brings us to Candidate No. 3 - Lou Piniella.

The veteran outfielder, like Jackson, has played key roles in sinking the Dodgers in two previous World Series. He's a money player, the kind of guy who performs better in the post-season than the regular schedule.

Then there is Candidate No. 4 -Bob Watson. The burly first baseman is having a great series. If he can come up big in the last two games, and if the Yankees win both, he'd be a cinch for the Most Valuable Player award. If the Dodgers win tonight or tomorrow night, Steve Garvey looks like a good bet as the MVP.

But what we're talking about here is someone who comes in unexpectedly and turns a World Series around, the way Steve Yeager has done for the Dodgers. Yeager appeared mostly against left-handed pitchers during the year, or only a few times a month. His teammates hoped the Yankees would beat Oakland because they sought revenge for 1977 and 1978. Yeager wanted the Yanks because all of Oakland's starters are right handed - and three of the New York starters are lefties.

But New York has a veteran who hasn't played much this year, elther. He's been used mostly as a pinch hitter. He's Candidate No. 5 and the choice here to be the unexpected World Series star - Bobby Murcer.

It would only be fitting. Because if it happened, Bobby Murcer would be fulfilling the legacy of 1965. That was the year Murcer arrived on the Yankee scene as a fuzzyfaced rookie. The mighty Broax Bombers at the time fielded such names as Mickey Mantle, Whitey Ford, Roger Maris, Tony Kubek, Bobby Richardson, Clete Boyer majors in 1965. But, here he is, in a World Series at last. When he made his first appearance, in Game Two in New York, he got a rousing round of applause from Yankee fans - for past services rendered, and for serving as a link to the Yankees' glorious past. Then he did the job, bunting men from first and second to second and third on a well-executed sacri-

In Game Three, the same situation presented itself, and the Yankees called upon their old pro to move the runners along once again, trailing by a run in the eighth inning. But this time Ron Cey dove to glove the bunt in the air and doubled the man off first.

In his only other appearance, Murcer reached on an error in the ninth inning of Game Four. It was his first chance to swing away, and only a questionable call - the umpire ruled Dodger pitcher Steve Howe missed the base on the force play - allowed him to beat out a bounces to first.

Bobby Murcer is due. He's been waiting for this Series for 16 years. The World Series is the 125-

Can 'Hot Goalie' Ice Blues?

By Mike Billoni COURIER-EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER

For the second time this season Scotty Bowman may test his new goal-tending system tomorrow night against the St. Louis Blues by replacing Bob Sauve with Donnie Edwards. Edwards, a second team National Hockey League all-star goalie two seasons ago when he shared the Vezina Trophy for lowest goals against average with Sauve, opened the season for the Buffalo Sabres but was replaced by Sauve after two periods of a 9-0 loss to Montreal in the second, game of the campaign.

Sauve has started the last seven games and was unbeaten before Sunday's 6-3 loss to Minnesota in Memorial Auditorium. Sauve allowed five goals with the sixth being scored into an empty as his goals against average went from 2.44 to 2.73, the sixth best in the league.

Before the season began, Bowman, who alternated goalles during the 1979-80 season when the Sabres had the league's best goals against average, said he would go with the current "hot" goalie until he cools

Bowman, coach and general, manager, said that he probably will decide tomorrow afternoon which goalie will start against the Blues. 'They both know the situation and they both will be ready to play on Wednesday."

Edwards is not used to riding the bench but he realizes there is not much he can do about it.

without playing," Edwards said. "If don't find out until about 6:45.

Don Edwards

I do play on Wednesday, it will be my first game in almost three weeks. That's the longest stretch I've ever gone without playing in Buffalo. I went longer stretches in Hershey (during his rookie season, 1975-76) without playing but it's tough to get used to:

"The thing that's hard to adjust to is not knowing when you are going to play," he said.

Edwards said he does not know who will get the call at Memorial Auditorium tomorrow night. "We don't find out who is starting until the meeting on the night of a game. "I don't like going long stretches For an 8 o'clock game, we usually

"I'm not going to prepare myself any differently for Wednesday," he said. "I prepare for every game as if I was going to play.

"If I do get the chance to play, I'll just go out and try to give it my best effort." Edwards said.

effort." Edwards said, "When you are playing well it's tough to sit out after a good game but on the other hand, if you are rotating you are always ready to go in," he said. "I like the system where if you are playing well, you stay in. But the tough situation here is that Bobby is a good goal keeper, I think I am a good goal keeper and we both know we could play on a lot of other clubs."

Tomorrow, Edwards may have his chance to prove he is the club's "hot" goalie.

NOTES — Once again, the Sabres. do not have a player among the league's top 15 scorers. Quebec's Real Cloutier leads the list with seven goals and 19 points and Edmonton's Mark Messier is the top goal secrer with 10. Buffalo's leading goal and point producer is Tony McKegney with five goals and 12 points ... The Sabres' defensemen defeated the forwards, four games to two in a best-of-seven scrimmage in yesterday's practice. The first team to score five goals won the game. Assistant Coach Nick Polano scored five goals for the winning team while Associate Coach Jim Roberts collected a pair for the losers. "I outscored him (Roberts) but I was always a better playmaker than he was," said Polano, who spent 15 years as a player, mostly in the American Hockey League.

Steelers Win, Tie for Lead

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Terry Bradshaw drilled a tie-breaking sixyard touchdown pass to John Stallworth with 3:41 left to play to spark the Pittsburgh Steelers a 26-13 victory over the Houston Oilers in a National Football League game played in a steady drizzle last night.

The victory boosted Pittsburgh, 5-3, back into a first-place tie in the American Football Conference Central Division with the Cincinnati Bengals, upset Sunday by New Or-

The Oilers, who had tied the game at 13-13 with a 10-point fourth-quarter surge, fell to 4-4 on the season. That ties them with Cleveland for second place in the tight AFC Cen-

Though minus injured defensive starters Joe Greene, L.C. Greenwood and Don Shell, the Steelers limited Earl Campbell to 56 yards on 23 carries. In addition, Campbell lost two fumbles in Steeler territory as Pittsburgh halted a string of eight consecutive Monday night victories by Houston. Trailing 13-10 midway in the final quarter, the Oilers used a 31-yard fake-punt pass from Cliff Parsley to Adger Armstrong to keep alive a drive that ended with Toni Fritsch's 44-yard field goal with 5:53 to play. Earlier in the fourth quarter, Oiler quarterback Ken Stabler combined with tight end Dave Casper on a 52-yard touchdown pass play. Casper caught the pass at the

Pittsburgh 35 and broke tackles by Jack Ham and Jack Lambert on his way to the end zone to cut the Pittsburgh lead to 13-10. After Fritsch's game-tying field goal, Steeler fullback Franco Harris broke loose on a 35-yard run, and an out-of-bounds roughing by Oiler linebacker Ted Washington drew a 15yard penalty that moved Pittsburgh to the Houston 19. With 3:59 remaining, Bradshaw threw an apparent 14-yard touchdown pass to Jim Smith, who had caught a 46-yard touchdown bomb in the first period. But the play was nullified by offsetting penalties. On the next play, Bradshaw scrambled eight yards to the Houston six. He rifled a pass to Stallworth between a pair of defenders on the next play for the winning score. Dave Trout, who kicked two firsthalf field goals for Pittsburgh, missed the extra point after Stallworth's score.

. The Oilers' ensuing drive was halted by a pass interception by Steeler safety Ron Johnson, who returned the ball eight yards to the visitor's 12-yard line. Four plays later. Franco Harris plunged one yard for a touchdown with two minutes to play for the Steelers' final score.

On the opening drive of the game, the Steelers marched from their own 34-yard line to the Houston 2, where they had first-and-goal. But an incomplete pass and two runs by Frank Pollard netted no yards and the Steelers settled for a 19-yard field goal by Trout.

A series later, Bradshaw lofted a 46-yard bomb to Smith, who beat cornerback J.C. Wilson for the goalline grab with 26 seconds left in the first quarter.

In the second period, the Oiler's penetrated to the Pittsburgh 33-yard line, but Campbell lost a fumble on a third-down play and linebacker Jack Ham recovered.

Houston safety Vernon Perry intercepted a Bradshaw pass on the next Steeler series and returned it 12 yards to the Pittsburgh 16. But the Offers had to settle for a 34-yard field goal by Fritsch.

Trout added a 19-yard Steeler field goal with 35 seconds left in the second quarter. Houston's Carl Roaches returned the ensuing kickoff 51 yards, but Fritsch missed a 42yard field goal attempt as the first half of this nationally televised game ended.

Penn State, Pitt Remain 1-2

ASSOCIATED PRESS Penn State and Pitt held on to the top two spots in the Associated Press college football poll yesterday, while Clemson climbed into third place and North Carolina slipped from third to ninth after suffering its first defeat of the season.

Penn State, avoiding the upset jinx that has struck four other No. 1 teams this season, defeated West Virginia, 30-7, and received 5 firstplace votes and 1,259 of a possible 1,230 points from a nation-wide panel of sports writers and sportscast-

Meanwhile, Pitt turned back Syracuse, 23-10, and received the other 19 first-place ballots and 1,235 points. Last week, Penn State led Pitt. 1.233/4 -1.277/4 to total points, and 35% -25% in first-place votes.

Clemson jumped from fourth place to third with Life points following a 17-7 victory over North-Carolina State and Southern California rose from fifth to fourth with 1,079 points following a 14-7 triumph over Notre Dame.

Georgia's defending national champions moved up from seventh to fifth with 990 points after blanking Kentucky, 21-0. Texas, which skidded from No. 1 to No. 10 a week ago. got back up to sixth with 893 points for a 9-7 decision over previously unbeaten Southern Methodist. The loss dropped the Mustanzs from eighth to 13th.

Iowa, last week's No. 6 team, also fell out of the Top Ten, slipping to 16th after losing to Minnesota, 12-10. Mississippi State west up from minth to seventh with a 21-17 victory over Auburn, Alabama jumped from Lith to eighth with a 31-7 triamph over Rutgers, North Carolina was down to minth after losing to South Carolina, 31-13, and Arizona State time this season, climbing from 17th to 10th, thanks to a 62-36 victory over Stanford. The Second Ten consists of Iowa

State, Nebraska, Southern Methodist. Washington State, Michigan, Iowa, Florida State, Washington, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Last week, it was Alabama, Arkansas, Brigham Young, Iowa

State, Nebraska, Washington State, Arizona State, Michigan, Missouri and Florida State. However, Brigham Young fell out of the Top Twenty after losing to

Wyoming, 33-20, and Missouri dropped out following its second consecutive loss, a 6-0 setback at the bands of Nebraska.

Washington defeated Texas Tech, 14-7, and returned to the rankings after a three-week absence, while Oklahoma made it back after a twoweek lapse following a 42-3 trouncing of Oregon State.

Fans Want Starr's Scalp

COURIER-EXPRESS WIRE SERVICES Bart Starr should be replaced as coach of the Green Bay Packers, according to 89 percent of respondents to a poll conducted by the Racine Journal-Times in Wisconsin.

The newspaper published questionnaires on the subject in its editions of last Tuesday through-Friday. Results were published Sunday, prior to the Packers' sixth defeat in eight National Football League games, 31-27 tothe Detroit Lions.

Of the 179 respondents, 158 or 89 percent - said Starr should be replaced. Another 19, or 11 percent, said Starr should remain as coach. Two of the respondents were uncommitted on the duestion.

The Journal-Times said that one of the 19 who wanted Start to keep his job identified himself as a Chicago Bears' fan. That person said he wants Starr to stay on. the job because, he said, Starr will remain a consistent loser.

These are the questions asked in the poll and the results: -Rate Starr's performance as coach. Excellent, 5 percent. Good, 3 percent. Fair, 11 percent. Poor, 42 percent. Terrible, 39 percent. -Has he had enough time to do the job? Yes, 92 percent. No, 8 percent. —Rate his record in the college draft. Excellent, 9 percent. Good.

31 percent. Fair, 32 percent. Poor, 17 percent. Terrible, 11 per-Starr's record in 61/2 seasons as

Packer coach is 33-63-2. Forty-eight of the respondents said they would like to see Starr replaced by John Madden, former coach of the Oakland Raiders. Forty-live others suggested George Allen, former coach of the Washington Redskins and Los-Angeles Rams. Another 13 sug-

• Former placekicker Don Cockroft, the second-leading scorer in Cleveland Browns history, announced his official retirement from professional football.

Cockroft, who struggled with injuries to his knee and back last season, was cut by the Browns prior to the start of this season. He was not picked up by any other National Football League team. He said he would no longer pursue another kicking job.

• Derek Singleton, starting. halfback for the University of Colorado, remained conscious and responsive in an Ames, Iowa, hospital where he was taken with Meningosoccal-Meningitis prior to the CU-Jowa State football game.

Singleton continued to respond to treatment and his improvement was described as excellent by attending physicians.

• Pete Relser, former Brooklyn Dodger outfielder who won the National League batting title in 1941, has died at age 62 after a long respiratory illness. Reiser died Sunday night in his home near Palm Springs, Calif., several hours after the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the New York Yankees in the fifth game of the 1981 World Series, said family spokesman Keith Tuber.

Reiser's wife, Pat, said Reiser was aware of the Dodgers' victory but had not been well enough - to follow the Series games close-

Tuber said Reiser "had wanted most of all to see his grandson baptized." Peter Brian Tuber, 3 months, was baptized Sunday.

Born March 17, 1919, in St. Louis, Reiser led the National League in batting and slugging in 1941, his first full season with the Dodgers, batting .343 with 39 doubles, 17 triples and 14 home runs and scoring 117 runs. He also led the league in stolen bases in 1942 and 1946 and stole home seven times in 1946, a major league re-

But Giles /told The Philadelphia Inquirer Corrales probably would not be hired until after the National League team has been sold by owner Ruly Carpen-

Giles heads a group that is attempting to purchase the Phils, and he speculated the sale would take place this week.

Corrales, a former manager and current administrative assistant of the Texas Rangers, met with Giles in Los Angeles Sunday morning before the fifth World Series game, the Inquirer said.

High School Sports

Andy Dowe's 13th goal of the season and Len Previte's eighth shutout (a school record) provided Lew-Port (11-0-3) a 1-0 decision over Lockport and the Niagara Frontier League title. It marked the Lancers' first undefeated season since 1965.

Williamsville East (9-2-1) locked up the ECIC Division I crown by defeating defending champion Sweet Home for the first time in history, 3-0. Doug Wolters scored twice for the Flames and Malik Hasan had 17 saves in posting his fifth shutout. Sweet Home finished 9-4.

Only one other ECIC race is unsettled, that is in Division III where Lake Shore (9-0-4) holds a two-point lead over West Seneca East (9-2-2) and a three-point margin over Hamburg (7-1-5).

Murphy Allen's second goal of the game, with 30 seconds left to play, gave Lake Shore a 3-2 nod over Orchard Park. The Eagles picked up a point on both of their pursuers as > Division II champion Clarence got an 8-1 waltz past Depew. Iroquois clinched second place as Scott Cohen scored his ninth and 10 goals a school record — in a 2-1 decision over Williamsville South.

Amherst bolstered its Section VI playoff hopes by nudging Lancaster, 3-2, as Mark Lewis scored the win-Gow of South Wales (9-1-1) retained its one-point lead over Park in the Independent Athletic Conference as Colin Maguire booted two goals and Adam Oberkircher recorded his seventh shutout, 4-0, over West Seneca Christian.

Park (8-1-2) got two goals apiece from Jeff Lischer, Cary Meyer and Doug Hill en route to a 10-1 thrashing of Niagara Lutheran.

Uduak Akan-Etuk and Yusif Yafai tallied two goals each as City Honors (3-1-1) moved to within one point of Emerson (4-0) in the City League by blanking Traditional, 5-0, for Jim Murray's third shutout. BOYS VOLLEYBALL

Alex Horvath's 19 spikes and Kipp Ottley's 12 points on serves led Hamburg to a 15-17-15-7, 15-10 win over Orchard Park after the two teams entered the final ECIC Division III match with 8-4 records.

Eden, avenging its lone defeat, defeated Lackawanna, 15-1, 9-15, 15-10, to wind up tied with the Steelers for first place in Division IV, each with a 12-1 record. The same two shared the title last season as Matt O'Connell spiked 16 points for Eden, Marvin Hall 15 and Ricky Prince 14 for Lackawanna.

Division I champion Sweet Home beat Williamsville East, 15-5, 15-12, to finish 15-0, the first time the Panthers have gone unbeaten.

BOYS GYMNASTICS Dan Piatek and Tim Rankin took two first places apièce to help Kenmore East shade Sweet Home, 97.4-97.3, for its first Section VI vic-

Stallions Get St. Louis' Orhan

Buffalo Stallions Coach Ray Klivecka entered yesterday's annual Major Indoor Soccer League college draft looking for players who will help the club in the future. He found two of them, but more importantly, he left Kansas City with an established MISL veteran who will help the club immediately.

Klivecka used the draft to work out a deal with defending champion St. Louis as the Stallions gave the Steamers a third and fourth round pick in this year's collegiate draft and a first in next year's lottery for flashy 26-year-old forward Yilmaz

Orhan, a 5-11, 165-pound native of Cyprus, scored 28 goals and had 44 had 22 goals and 19 assists for the

"We would not have been able to draft a player of his caliber this year or next year" Klivecka said. 'He has the ability to score from any area on the field and he will fit in with the Stallions' overall running

"No question about it," said a delighted Buffalo General Manager Sai DeRosa, "I believe Orhan can help this team right away. He is an established veteran of the league, he can score and he is a very flashy player."

The Stallions used their first pick points for St. Louis last season. He to select 17-year-old Scott Grillo, a Marshall High School senior from Steamers during the 1979-80 cam- Rochester who began playing soccer at the age of six under former Stallion Carlos Metidieri. He has scored 79 goals in his high school career and has been chosen a city all-star since his freshman year. Selected to the National Soccer team the last two year, Grillo scored twice within a minute to help his Western Region team capture the bronze medal at this year's Empire State Games. The Stallions also selected Afrim Nezaj of New York City.

Accountants Droj Books for Meat Firm

- By Bill Callahan COURIER EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER

Why would two accountants hire a third to do their books? Dennis Czarnecki and Frank Marcello did because they are too busy with their new fast-growing business.

The new venture is far removed from the accounting profession. Most of the time Frank ends up wearing a butcher's coat trimming and cutting meat while Dennis is on the road drumming up new business for their wholesale meat operation. They are the owners and operafors of Wil-Par Packing Co. Inc., 1090 Niagara Falls Blvd., Town of Tonawanda, a six-year-old wholesale meat business. The business was started back in 1975 by Marcello along with another partner, who later dropped out. A third investor, Dr. Jack Wilkes of Batavia, provided backing

Marcello, 48, who grew up in Batavia, and Czarnecki, 33, who is from Alden, are both graduates of Bryant and Stratton Business Institute in accounting. They didn't meet there but did get together in the early 1970s when they both were working for the same accounting firm. Later, they formed their own accounting business.

Before forming the accounting company with Czarnecki, Marcello had been doing accounting work for a company which sold meat on a time-payment plan for home freezers. When the owners wanted out of that business, Marcello took it over and operated it for a time before giving it up because of health prob-

Dow Jones Registers Slight Dip

By Alexander R. Hammer THE NEW YORK TIMES

NEW YORK - Stock prices dropped moderately yesterday, reflecting investors' apprehension over high interest rates and inflation as well as the sluggish state of the economy.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which was in the loss column throughout the session, closed down 7.03 points to 830.96. In the overall market, cored winners by almost a 9-to-5 ratio.

Stock prices generally fall when interest rates are high, because corporate expenses are increased, and profits tend to decrease. Also, investors are discouraged from equities and attracted to competing forms of investments, such as money-market funds.

Investors yesterday were also discouraged over the sharp drop in bond prices and by the government report on Friday that consumer prices rose 1.2 percent in September, a grim reminder of high inflation rates. Also, the recent figures on industrial production and the many lower corporate earning reports have given strong signals of a deepening recession.

Turnover on the Big Board yesterday contracted to 38.2 million shares from 42 million shares on Friday as institutional participation slackened.

Robert Ritter, vice president and technical Josers on the New York Stock Exchange outs analyst of L.F. # Question:

What do you call it, Buffalo, when you scale a big job down to size?

Answer:

Give someone a beep and they'll give you a buzz.

You can reach people anywhere in the greater Buffalo area. with New York Telephone's Bellboy* paging service.

They'll get your signal whether they're on the street, in a car. or in a building. And call you from the nearest telephone.

It's the way to keep people who are out on business from being out of reach.

You can even get a second beep which tells people to call a second number, such as a branch office, dispatcher, or warehouse. And, for an extra $2.00, you can add a Silent Alert feature that pulsates instead of beeps.

If you like the way that sounds, give us a buzz from 9AM to 5PM at (716) 842-0606 in Buffalo.

QUESTION:

How does my tax bracket affect my choice between Citibank ALL SAVERS CERTIFICATE and EASY ACCESS"CD?

Generally, anyone who is in the 25% and above tax bracket should consider All Savers Certificates. The chart below shows how your tax bracket might affect your decision.

Approximate Gross Income	1982 Marginal Tax Bracket*	Savings Instrument	Annual Yield	Before Tax Equivalent Yield
		6 month CD	14.559%	14.559%
$10.000	20%	All Saver	12.14%	15.175%

$100,000	56%	All Saver	12.14%	27.59%

"The marginal bracket assumes maximum 1982 Federal tax bracket plus the combined New York State resident income tax (net of Federal deduction), based on a married couple filing a joint return 0 dependents and itemized deductions of 20% The All Savers Certificate is subject to a substantial interest penalty and loss of tax

The Citibank 6 month DC rate is currently available October 27, 1981 to November 2, 1981 The yield is based on reinvestment at maturity of principal and interest earned for an additional term at the same rate. However, a different rate may be in effect when the cer tificate is renewed at the end of 26 weeks. By Federal regulation, there is a substantial interest penalty for accounts closed before maturity except those accounts converted to an All Savers Certificate. Compounding of interest in a 8-month investment savings. account during the term of deposit is prohibited by law The Ali Saver Certificate yield is good through October as does the sinking fastball that John throws. Although the Dodgers have won three straight in the Series, their infield has shown some weak spots. Sunday, second baseman Dave Lopes committed three errors; two on one play, and tied two World Series records. "You saw how I played today in the field," Lopes said when he was asked to describe his performance. I've just got to get myself together.

I don't care what people might

The Yankees have beaten the Dodgers six straight at Yankee Stadium, dating back to the 1977 World Series. The last time Los Angeles won at the stadium was in the second game of the '77 Fall Classic when Hooton beat Catfish Hunter

"I remember that game well," Hooton said, "but this is a big game, was his third straight start with only too. With me going Tuesday and Fernando (Valenzuela) backing me up, the Yankees will have their work cut out for them, too."

John shut out the Dodgers through his seven innings' work last Wednesday, but he was not with the team on Sunday. He flew from Los Angeles back to New York to get an extra day's rest.

Yankees Manager Bob Lemon said he didn't expect Saturday's relief stint to affect John for Game 6.

Lemon said he was concerned about the availability of third baseman Graig Nettles, who injured his left thumb in Game 2 and missed all three games in Los Angeles. The Yankees manager said Nettles was on a day-to-day basis. ---

In addition, Lemon said he intended to start Jerry Mumphrey, who was benched for two games, in center field to face the right-handed Hooton. Dave Winfield will move to

The Dodgers and Yankees have met in 10 previous World Series. The Yankees have won eight, the Dodgers two, in 1955 and 1963, when Los Angeles won four stràight.

'We're due," Dodgers first baseman Steve Garvey said. "Game 6, No. 6, six is a lucky number for a lot' of people. The smell is in the air. I think we can do it.

This weekend went just like I expected it," said Garvey, who hit .450 in the first five games of the Series. "Playing in front of our fans was the

Here's Cheers to an Old Geezer, His Totem Poles and His Spunk

They come in with gleams in their small-town politician and any numeyes and heavy cardboard boxes under their arms.

"I've written a book," they say. "Will you read it?" What's it about?

"About what a bitch my ex-wife is. 🦠 and how she and her second husband took me to the cleaners. They even got my car.'

Or: "It's an expose of the place I work for: The boss hates me and in the book I tell how he's been messing around with his secretary for years so his wife can read it."

Then they ask how they can get the book published. I tell them no publisher will touch their books because they're amateurs and nobody wants to read about their personals problems.

That's usually enough to discourage them. And so they take their unpublished manuscript home and at least have the satisfaction of showing it to their friends and relatives, thus venting their spleen.

But some don't. They're so obsessed with seeing their words in print that they track down what is known in the book trade as "The Vanity Press." These are printing companies that will - for a large sum - turn anything you want into a book.

Thus, for $15,000 or $20,000 you will have the satisfaction of seeing a huge stack of book-filled cartons in your cellar, collecting dust.

You're stuck with them because few bookstores will stock anything resembling a vanity book, most of which are awful.

I've read many of them. My favorite was written by a Greek immigrant whose wife and her brother cheated him out of his share of their restaurant. The book included chapters on how he threw his brother-inlaw out a window and broke his leg, and contained many wholesale receipts from the restaurant's purveyors, and reams of pages from the restaurant's ledger. It was called: "Don't Let It Happen to You."

I don't know what the poor man did with all those thousands of books. Maybe he just dropped a box of them out a window on his exwife's and brother-in-law's heads.

But once in a while someone comes along like Paul Luvera, of Anacortes, Wash. Some of you might remember him.

Four years ago, Luvera wrote me a letter telling me about himself. He was 79 years old, an Italian immigrant who had been a coal miner, sand copies of "How to Carve Tober of things.

Besides his wife, Luvera's great love in life was totem poles, which were the creation of American Indians in his part of the country.

He had taken up carving them as a hobby and had become an expert on the history and meaning of totem poles. He carved little ones and some more than 20 feet high.

He knew everything about totem poles. And, when he was in his late 70s, he decided to share this knowledge with the world. He wrote a book and called it: "How to Carve Totem Poles."

Then he wrote to a dozen publishers in New York. Their response amounted to: "You've got to be kidding!"

You can't really blame them. Eyery year, about 20,000 to 30,000 new books are published in America. Most of them aren't worth reading, including the best sellers. And most don't sell more than a few thousand copies.

So why would anyone think that the country was awaiting its very first book on how to carve totem

But Luvera didn't give up. He wrote to a dozen more publishers, most of whom didn't even respond. One who did said:

"If I printed 100 copies of your book, I would flood the totem pole

At that point, Luvera should have taken the hint, been satisfied that he had an interesting hobby and let it go at that.

But Luvera got mad. He looked in the bookstores and saw that there were books on sex for the single man, for the single woman, how to cheat on your wife, how to cheat on your husband, the basic 197 positions of sex, how to make love on a trampoline, how to go insane and like it, how to become a millionaire with an investment of only $1.52 and an hour a week, and many other pieces of great knowledge and ad-

So, he reasoned, everybody in the world can't be running around naked or crazy. Somebody had to be interested in something as wholesome as carving totem poles. 'We're going to do it," he told his wife, who tried to look as happy as she could at the thought of using their $20,000 life savings to have the book printed.

A few months later, there they were - flat broke with a few thou-tem Poles" gathering dust in their basement.

Luvera wasn't sure what to do. There aren't that many totem pole book-buyers in Anacortes, Wash.

Then he got an idea. So he sent me a copy of his book and a letter that said: "I would like to show those smart-aleck New York publishers how wrong they were. I read his book and, as totem pole-carving books go, it wasn't

So, having a weakness for 79year-old geezers who do crazy things, I decided to write a columnabout Lavera and his book. -

And suddenly the Luvera mail was coming in sacks - orders rolling in for the totem pole book. Within weeks, he had sold every 'M book. So he printed some more. And within a few months, he had his $20,000 back and had hired a girl part time just to process the orders. A month or so ago, I received a letter from Luvera, who is now 83. He said: "I'm still carving 20-foot totem poles and Mary, my wife, who is 75, is still painting them. "So far, we have sold 16,500 copies of the book. They are now stocked in bookstores or can be ordered through them.

'The demand is still so great that I have gone into my fifth printing another 2,500 books."

So if you want to carve a totem pole, or just look at the colored pictures of them, Luvera's book is still available. Oh, one other thing - Luvera has a message for the 24 New York publishers who brushed him off: "It's been a pleasure —¹ you smart-asses.'

Both vulnerable. South deals.

You tell 'em, old geez.

It is not easy to see where declarer can develop an extra chance at his three no trump contract. But, there was one, and by unearthing it, South landed a game that seemed destined for defeat.

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

The auction was straightforward. South's jump to two no trump showed 19-20 points, and North's five-card suit and good intermediates were just enough to sway him to raise to game.

West led the jack of hearts, and when dummy came down declarer could count four tricks in the major suits, plus the ace of clubs. Therefore, he had to develop four more in the minor suits to make his contract. That would be a simple matter if the club finesse succeeded. But what if it failed?

In that case, the defenders would knock out the remaining heart stopper before declarer could establish a diamond for his ninth trick. Whichever defender won the ace of diamonds would then be able to continue hearts, enabling the defenders to cash their tricks to defeat the contract.

Declarer, therefore, decided to play on diamonds first. However, after winning the first heart trick it would not have done to lead a diamond from the closed hand. East would win and force out the ace of hearts, and declarer would still have to concede a club trick and with it the contract.

Declarer found the superior play of crossing to the king of spades and leading a low diamond from the table. East perforce rose with the ace, so declarer was able to bring in the diamond suit, with the help of a marked finesse, after winning the ace of hearts.

Note that, had East played low and had the king of diamonds won the trick, declarer would abandon diamonds and play on clubs -four club tricks would then be enough. And if the king of diamonds lost to the ace, declarer would have the queen as an entry to the table to take the club finesse for his con-COCHCAGO TRELINE RY NEWS SYND, BIC
